VOTERS' LIST, 1910.

Municipality of the Township of Richmond County of Lennox & Addington.

Notice is hereby given that I have transmitted or delivered to the persons mentioned in section nine of "The Ontario Voters' Lists Act" the copies required by said section to be so transmitted or delivered of the list, made pursuant to said Act, of all persons appearing by the last revised Assessment Roll of the said Municipality to be entitled to vote in the said Municipality at elections for members of the Legislative Assembly, and at Municipal Elections; and that the said list was first posted up at my office in Richmond, on the 6th day of

Court of Revision.

Notice is hereby given that a Court will be held, pursuant to "The Ontario Voters' Lists Act," by His Honor the Judge of the County Court of the County of Lennox and Addington, at Tamworth, in the town hall, on FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30th, 1910, at the hour of 9 o'clock in the forenoon, to hear and determine complaints of errors and omissions in the Voters' List of the Municipality of Sheffield.

JAS. AYLSWORTH,
Township Clerk, Sheffield.
Dated Tamworth, Sept. 7th, 1910.

ALBERT COLLIER

NAPANEE FALL FAIR

As usual the Lennox County Fair drew a very large attendance at the fair grounds, on Thursday and Friday last. The popularity of the Napanee fair shows no decline, and of the large amount offered in prizes nearly all classes were well filled, and the secretary-treasurer, Dr. Ming, will this year pay out an unusually large amount in prize money. The displays in all classes were large, excepting the agricultural machinery, carriages, etc., which shows a falling off from previous years. The showing of cattle, sheep, and swine was good and the horses excellent. The palace was as usual very tastefully arranged and the many exhibits attracted large crowds to view them.

THE FIRST DAY.

Inside the palace the first day is given over to arranging the exhibits and getting everything ready for the evening and second day. On the track some very interesting races were run, affording considerable amusement for sightseers. Following are the prize winners:—

FREE-FOR-ALL.

Judges—C. H. Hawley, J. J. Johnston, C. H. Hamblly.
Rio D., D. Lake..... 1 1 1
Rex, T. P., Dr. Benson..... 2 2 2
Golden Prince, J. J. McAllister 3 3 3

FARMERS' RACE.

Brino Bass, C. W. Hamby... 3 1 1
Black Jet, Jas. Young..... 1 2 3
Silver Joe, E. O. Kayler..... 2 3 2

THE BABY SHOW.

The palace was crowded on Thursday evening to hear the band concert and see the ever popular event, the Baby Show. There were a goodly number of babies of both sex exhibited, and the judges had considerable difficulty in choosing the winners, all were such fine handsome babies. Following were the prize winners:—

For best baby girl, under one year—1st, Agnes Holbrook, age 9 months; 2nd, Florence Clark, aged 9 months; 3rd, Dorothy Hinds, aged 5 1/2 months.

For best baby boy under one year—1st, Jas. Whitney Skinner, aged 4 months; Clifford Storms, aged 7 months; Chauncey Goodall, aged 11 months.

Special by Dr. Ming, $5.00 for prettiest baby boy or girl—Martha Wheeler, aged 5 months.

IN THE PALACE.

Lack of space will not permit us to give an adequate description of the various exhibits in the palace, suffice to say that all were attractively arranged and all secured much attention from the crowd present.

Mr. C. A. Wiseman had a display of cream separators and a beautiful Karn piano, the agency for which Mr. Wiseman secured a few weeks ago. It was a beautifully toned instrument and from the many inquiries received by Mr. Wiseman, no doubt orders for pianos will follow.

Mr. R. B. Allen's exhibit of pianos, organs, gramophones, phonographs and other musical instruments was in the usual place on the ground floor. Mr. Allen always has an attractive exhibit and this year's was not behind any other in the palace.

There was an unusually large display of home-made bread, a large number of special prizes being offered to good bread bakers.

Upstairs Madill Bros. display vied with the ladies' work in attracting the TAMWORTH FAIR.

Tuesday was exhibition day at Tamworth. The weather was all that could be desired, the crowd of people in attendance was larger than usual, the exhibits were equally as good as ever before, if not better, and all things combined the fair this year was a grand success.

Much credit is due the management of the fair this year for the success attained. They had many obstacles to meet and overcome. The building formerly used for the exhibits had been taken down and removed, and a place had to be provided. A fine large tent was secured and erected where the old building formerly stood, and while it was not exactly as suitable as the former building, it answered the purposes admirably. We understand the management purpose erecting a suitable building before the time for the next fair arrives.

Inside the tent there was a fine exhibit of the different kinds of garden and field products, ladies' fancy work, merchants' displays, fur goods, pianos, etc.

The exhibit of horses was good, some fine specimens being shown, while the showing of cattle, sheep, pigs, and poultry was somewhat larger than that of former years.

For the amusement of the sight-seers there was a base ball match between Parham and Tamworth teams which was keenly contested and resulted in a victory for the Parham boys by a score of 10-6. The Odessa band kept the crowd enlivened by their choice selections, and the class in which the single driving horses, speed considered, was shown furnished considerable sport for the lovers of fast horses.

D. R. Benson secured 1st prize, and Ira Salisbury 2nd prize in the single horse speeding contest.

Under the able direction of the following officers Tamworth show is bound to grow, and will eventually forge ahead and take its place among the first fall fairs of the county:—President, John Harrison, Tamworth; 1st Vice-Pres., Albert Milligan, Tamworth; 2nd Vice-Pres., R. Nugent, Newburgh; Secretary, G. H. Richardson, Tamworth; Treasurer, A. B. Carscadden, Tamworth.

Directors—J. Donevan, Tamworth; E. Harrison, Tamworth; Patriok Powers, Erinsville; J. O'Brien, Tamworth; John Quinn, Erinsville; G. A. Reid, Croydond; S. Gilmere, Tamworth; Thomas Murphy, Tamworth.

Following is the prize list:—

organs, kranophones, phonographs and other musical instruments was in the usual place on the ground floor. Mr. Allen always has an attractive exhibit and this year's was not behind any other in the palace.

There was an unusually large display of home-made bread, a large number of special prizes being offered to good bread bakers.

Upstairs Madill Bros. display vied with the ladies' work in attracting the attention of the fair sex. This firm show by their display that they aim to have the very highest quality of merchandise, and have the added faculty of displaying it in a way worthy of the firm and attractive to those who see it. Quality not quantity was the keynote of the display.

Mr. F. W. Vandusen had a splendid exhibit of the goods carried by him, furs, fur robes, harness of any description, blankets, lap rugs, everything in the way of brushes, combs, etc., used where horses are kept, all tastefully displayed.

Mr. J. H. Fitzpatrick, proprietor of The Napanee Bottling Works, had a fine display of liquid refreshments, flavouring extracts, etc. on the ground floor.

Mr. A. E. Paul had a display of picture moulding and other goods of a like nature, also all the paraphernalia necessary to make picture frames while you wait. Picturing framing is an important branch of Mr. Paul's business.

Mr. J. W. Courtney, Newburgh, had a showing of the products of his business, leather, rugs, robes, etc.

The Singer Sewing Machine Co. had besides several machines a patent stocking darning, which interested the ladies considerably.

Messrs. Dafoe & Waller had a small exhibit of the lines of wood work, sash, doors, etc., made by this firm. The display did not by any means give an idea of the variety of wood-working done by them, as they will supply anything from a shingle to a completed house.

Mr. M. S. Madole had a large and representative exhibit of stoves, ranges, hardware, brassware and builders' hardware. Special mention might be made of the Hecla Furnace, one of the most improved furnaces on the market, "Adanac Peninsular," and "Peerless" cast ranges, "Monarch" steel ranges with tile back, and "Regal" upright stoves. These goods are all manufactured by the well known firm of Clare Bros., and Mr. Madole is the Napanee agent. A representative of Messrs. Clare Bros. was in attendance during the fair explaining to visitors the good points of the furnaces, stoves and ranges.

Mr. M. W. Simkins, of Newburgh, the veteran sewing machine agent had on exhibition besides his sewing machines a new steel range of his own design, which attracted considerable attention and received well merited praise. Mr. Simkins received several orders for these ranges during the fair. Mr. Simkins sells the range on a week's trial, and if not found satisfactory the range will be removed. Mr. Simkins did not exhibit for a prize but to sell ranges.

CENTREVILLE FAIR.

Splendid weather greeted Centreville Fair this year, and the attendance was correspondingly large. A splendid lot of horses and cattle were exhibited, but the ladies' work exhibit was somewhat smaller than in other years. The fruit, vegetables, grain, etc., were about the average in quantity and all of good quality. A number of booths were on the grounds dispensing refreshments, and a concert in the evening rounded out a good day's programme.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber,

Napanee, Sept. 19th, 1910.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening.

Mayor Simpson was absent and Reeve Alexander was asked to take the chair.

Present—Councillors Meng, Waller, Osborne, Steacy, Hawley and Kimmerly.

The minutes of the last regular and special sessions were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from the Great Northwestern Telegraph Co., stating that they did not intend to paint their poles in Napanee, as requested by the Municipal Council. They had about one hundred poles in the town, and a painter in Napanee had given them an estimate of $1.50 per pole for painting them with two coats of paint. The law does not compel telegraph companies to paint their poles in towns or villages, and if they painted them in Napanee, other towns would make a similar request, and they were not in a position to comply with them.

Referred to the Town Solicitor to report, also that the Solicitor be asked to give an opinion as to whether any company has power to use the town streets by erecting poles thereon, and then renting them to other parties.

Mayor Simpson entered and occupied the chair.

Coun. Waller, Chairman of Streets Committee, reported that the drain in front of Mrs. Lafferty's property on Robert street, had been opened, cleaned and flushed, and it was hoped the difficulty had been remedied.

A By-law for building cement walks on the north side of Ann street, from John street to Centre street, and on the west side of Robert street, north to Thomas street, was introduced by Coun. Waller, and given its first, second and third readings and finally passed.

The bridge crossing the canal in front of Gibbard's furniture factory was reported in need of repair. The question came up as to whether the town was liable for repairs on this structure or not. Considerable discussion did not furnish a solution.

Moved by Coun. Meng, seconded by Coun. Waller, that the matter be referred to the Streets Committee with power to act. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Waller, seconded by Coun. Meng, that the Council refer back to the order of business, communications. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Waller, seconded by Coun. Meng, that the resolution dealing with the construction of sewers passed at a recent meeting, be reconsidered. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Waller, seconded by Coun. Meng, that the motion referred to be rescinded. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Waller, seconded by Coun. Meng, that the recommendation of the local Board of Health in respect to the construction of the following sewers, namely: along Dundas street from West street to Bridge street, along Adelphi street from near Thomas street to Dundas street, and from near East street easterly along Bridge street to Dundas street, and also along John street from the G. T. R. lands southerly to Thomas street, and from Donald street easterly on Dundas street connecting the sewer al-

THE SECRET OF HER POWER;

CHAPTER IV.—(Cont'd)

Dorothy Usk does not favor the modern mode of having relays of guests for two days or three days; she thinks it makes a country house too like a hotel. She wishes her people to be perfectly well assorted and then to stay with her at least a week, even two weeks or three weeks. People do not often object; Orme, Denton, and Surrenden are all popular places, and Surrenden is perhaps most popular of all.

"An ideal house," says Blanford, who would not stay a day where he was not as free as air.

"It's too much like a hotel," grumbles the master of it, "and a hotel where the table d'ôte bell rings to deaf ears. Lord! I remember in my poor mother's days everybody had to be down to breakfast at 9 o'clock every morning as regularly as if they were charity children, and the whole lot of 'em were marched off to church on Sunday whether they liked it or not. The villagers used to line the path across the fields to see the great folk pass. Now it's as much as ever Dolly can do to get a woman or two up in time to go with her. How things are changed, by Jove! And it isn't so very long ago, either."

"The march of intellect, my dear George," says Blanford; "neither be lion den nor we are great folk any longer."

"Well, I think it's a pity," sighs Usk. "Everybody was happier then a d'jollier, too, though we do tear about so to try and get amused."

"There is still nothing to prevent you going to sleep in the big pew if it pleases you," replies Blanford; "and Lawrence Hamilton always goes that he may look at Mrs. Curzon's profile as she sings; she is really saintly then. I think Sunday service is to English women what confession is to catholic ladies; it sweeps all the blots off the week's tablets. It is convenient if illogical."

"You are very irreligious," says his host, who is invariably orthodox when orthodoxy doesn't interfere with anything.

"Not more so than most people," says Blanford. "I have even felt religious when I have been alone in the savannahs or in the jungle. I don't feel so in a wooden box covered with red velvet, with a curate bawling in my ears about the hewing in pieces of Agag."

"That's nothing to do with it," says Usk, "we're bound to set an you were to put together the sherry, the dry champagne, the liquors at tea, the brandy in the cheese at dinner, which a fashionable woman takes in the course of the day (not counting any pick-me-up that she may require in her room), the amount would be something enormous—incredible! You would not believe the number of women who have cured me of an unhappy passion for them by letting me see what a lot they could drink."

"You will adore the Sabaroff, then. She never touches anything that I see, except tea."

"Admirable person! I am ready to adore her. Tell me more about her. By the way, who is she?"

"Oh, you must go to Polly for biographies of her foreigners. I can't keep even their names in my head."

"Foreigners! What an expression!" cries Dorothy Usk, in disdain. "Since steam effaced frontiers, nobody but insular people like ourselves ever use such a term. Nationalities are obliterated."

She is very fond of Xenia Sabaroff, she has a great many warm attachments to women who help to make her house attractive.

"Nationalities are still discernible in different tobaccos," murmurs Blanford. "The Havana won't acknowledge an equal in the Cavour."

"Dolly don't know anything about her," continues Usk, clinging to the subject.

"Oh, my dear!" cried his wife, shocked, "when she is the niece of the great chancellor and her mother was a Princess Dourtsa."

"You don't know anything about her," repeats Usk with that unpleasant obstinacy characteristic of men when they talk to their wives.

"You met her in Vienna, and took one of your crazes for her, and she may have sent a score of lovers to Siberia, or deserve to go there herself for anything you can tell. One can never be sure of anything about foreigners."

"How absurd you are, and how insular," cries Dorothy Usk again.

"Foreigners!" As if there were any foreigners in these days, when Europe is like one family!"

"A family which like most families squabbles and scratches pretty often, then," says Usk, which seems to his wife a reply too vulgar to be worthy of contradiction. He is conscious that Xenia Sabaroff is a very great lady, and that her quarrellings, backed by descent and alliance, are wholly irreproachable—indeed, written in that libro d'oro, Worth's or Rodrigue's are conspiring for the Orleanists when they try on my clothes!"

"They are conspiring for the ruin of your family," says Usk, with a groan. "Whose purse can stand those Paris prices?"

"What an irrelevant remark!" cries Lady Usk. "You are always dragging money questions into everything."

"Those faiseurs as you call 'em," continues Usk, unheeding, "are at the root of half the misery of society. Women get into debt up to their eyes for toilets, and they don't care what abomination they do if they get enough out of it to go on plunging. Hundred-guinea gowns soon make up a pretty total when you change 'em three times a day."

"And if women are guys aren't the men furious?" asked his wife. "Even if they try to economize, aren't they always taunted with being dowdies? You none of you know anything about the cost of things, and you expect everybody to be bien mise on a half-penny a day. When Boom saw me at Ascot this year he stared at me and whispered to me; 'Oh, I say, mother! you've got the same bonnet on you had at the Oaks. I do hope the other fellows won't notice it.' That is how he will speak to his wife some day, and yet I dare say, like you, he will expect her to get her bonnets from Vivot at 10 francs apiece!"

MODERN FOOD SUPPLIES

CHANGES IN OUR INDUSTRIAL CUSTOMS.

Disappearance of the Millstone—Bread-Making Remains the Same.

The remarkable changes of the latter half of the nineteenth century in the means of communication and transport have enormously altered commercial and industrial relations. Improvements in machinery and vastly increased competition have also made a lasting impression. The appearance of railways, the post office, telephones, sounded the knell of small and local enterprises and prepared the way for gigantic combined industries.

A review of these changes as they affect the preparation of foods and food-stuffs has recently been made by Prof. Lindet of the National Agronomic Institute of France. Reference is chiefly to French industries, but some of the points, says the British Medical Journal, are of general interest. In the manufacture of bread the old millstone, which had done duty for centuries, has since 1884 rapidly been replaced by more efficacious and economical machinery. This has caused the disappearance of the old country mills and has insured the production of

A MUCH FINER FLOUR.

In the actual baking of bread there has not been such a noteworthy change; the necessity for the early delivery of fresh bread every morning still enables the local baker to maintain his place. Attempts at wider organization and co-operation have only been to a certain extent successful, but great may live to see the realization of Robida's facetious scheme for laying in food supplies by means of a tube from a great central kitchen.

NURSING SISTERS AT CAMP.

Canada Is Now Equipped Like Armies of the Older World.

Canadian girls, like their sisters everywhere, get the reputation of having a weakness for brass buttons. For instance, at a dance, what chance has a sable-garbed civilian where there are military waltzing? So far in Canada this feminine admiration for things militant has been only passive; which is to say that the girls of the Dominion have been largely content to be mere spectators of the splendours of military pomp, sometimes it is true being carried away by the glitter, and then expressing their effervescent spirits as smart cadets in amateur theatricals or at the college masquerade. Till this year in Canada there were no real soldier girls—live soldier girls who could reel off the Militia List and gossip volubly of the summer camp.

June, 1910, is somewhat of a memorable date in the history of military Canada; six girls went to Niagara camp in full regalia—and for once the dashing captains in their proud plumage were not the heroes. There were heroines—Nursing Sisters Morris, Leischman, McGiffin, Daymon, Hammel and Hatch. On the pretty blue uniforms are shoulder straps, and the brass buttons on the epaulettes indicate that each of the young ladies is dignified with the rank of lieutenant during her stay in camp.

The Nursing Sisters are attached to the Army Medical Corps. Bringing them to camp—that was a step in advance for the corps, another example of the progress which has characterized the militia during the past ten years; which has substituted the Army Service Corps for the bull-beef contractor, and organized the Army Medical Corps in place of the regimental doctor and his slim, black bag, turning the whole Canuck army from a crudity into a system.

"What useful purpose is served by bringing trained nurses to a summer military camp?" the sceptic will ask. Talk to Col. Fenton, C.O., Field Ambulance No. 10. He will dilate upon the advantage of the nurse with military experience.

"Nursing experience to be found in summer camp?" you say. "Pshaw!" Then the colonel and his assistants will quietly laugh at your incredulity, and tell you how dead wrong you are.

This year there were eleven days of Niagara camp. Now for the casualty list. In that period out of 4,000 soldiers, 129 sick and wounded were cared for by the Nursing Sisters. The maladies ranged from indigestion and gunshot-wound down the list to colds and pneumonia.

One case of appendicitis was recorded—quite notable, for the victim for the first time in the Canadian military history was operated on, and successfully too, in the open air.

What of the hospital equipment at Niagara? Eight tents comprised the hospital, each tent a ward containing six beds. The capacity of the hospital was, therefore, 48 patients, and the maximum was well averaged during the eleven days. There was an operating tent and a diet tent. The wards were regularly patrolled, diet sheets were kept, records of the patient, his progress and treatment, were set down. In fact the canvas institution was a city hospital in epitome—one difference; the ozone flapped through the tent wards, chasing away the odors of the apothecary.

The innovation of the Nursing Sisters at Niagara camp was a distinct success. It is understood that the Militia Department have it under consideration to invite more trained nurses from the big hospitals to the summer camps throughout the Dominion. This policy would bear fruit in case of active service; the girls who have learned the routine of the

"Not more so than most people," says Blanford. "I have even felt religious when I have been alone in the savannahs or in the jungle. I don't feel so in a wooden box covered with red velvet, with a curate bawling in my ears about the hewing in pieces of Agag."

"That's nothing to do with it," says Usk, "we're bound to set an example."

"That's why you doze in public and Mrs. Curzon wears her big pearls, to lead the school children in the way they should go."

"That's nothing to do with it," repeats Lord Usk, somewhat crossly. He has a comfortable, if indistinct, idea that he does something patriotic, patriarchal, and highly praiseworthy in getting up an hour earlier than usual one Sunday out of three, and putting on a tall hat, a frock coat, a pair of new gloves, to attend the village church for morning service when he is at Orme, Denton, or Surrenden in fine weather.

CHAPTER V.

A few new people have come by the brake, and make their appearance at luncheon. More come by the 5 o'clock train, and are visible at 6 o'clock tea, which is always to be had in the library any time before 7; dinner at all the Usk houses is always at 9. Blanford's doctrines do not prevail with any of his acquaintances, although he, unlike most professors, emphasizes them by example.

Among the people who come by the latter train are the famous Mr. Wootton, a man very famous at London dinner parties, and Lady Gundrede Vansittart, whose dinners are the best in London.

"Where would those two people be if you brought the pulse and the rice you recommend into fashion?" says their host to Blanford. "Take 'em away from the table they'd be good for nothing. He wouldn't say 'Bo' to a goose, and she wouldn't be worth leaving a ssad upon. Believe me, my dear Guy, such esprit as there is left in me is only brought out by eating."

"I think you invert all your reasonings," says Blanford. "Say, rather, that too much eating has destroyed all esprit. Don't we eat all day long everywhere, or at least are expected to do so? You lament your ruined digestion. It is impossible to digest when time is only counted by what our beloved Yankees call square meals (why square I fail to fathom); and for women it is worse than for us, because they eat such quantities of sweet things we don't touch, and then the way they go in for caviare bread and butter and anchovy sandwiches and all kinds of rich cakes and deux doigts de Madere or glasses of kummel at the tea hour—it is frightful. I wonder they have any complexions at all left, even with the assistance of all the 'secrets de Venus'."

"You won't alter 'em, my dear fellow," replies Usk, "if you put yourself out about it ever so much. If you were to marry a savage out of Formosa, or an Esquimaux, she'd take kindly to the caviare and the kummel before a week was out if you brought her to Europe. Why look at dogs—you may keep 'em on biscuit if they live in the kennels, but if they once come to the dining-room they'll turn their noses up at a breakfast if it isn't truffled."

"Dogs, at least, stop short of the kummel," says Blanford; "but if

"A family which like most families squabbles and scratches pretty often, then," says Usk, which seems to his wife a reply too vulgar to be worthy of contradiction. He is conscious that Xenia Sabaroff is a very great lady, and that her quarterings, backed by descent and alliance, are wholly irreproachable—indeed, written in that libro d'oro, the Almanac de Gotha, for all who chose to read.

Her descent and her diamonds are alike immaculate, but her character?—he is too old-fashioned a Briton not to think it very probable that there is something louche there.

Usk is a Russophobe, as becomes a true Tory. He has a rooted impression that all Russians are spies, when they are not swindlers; much as in the early years of the century his grandsire had been positive that all Frenchmen were assassins when they were not dancing-masters. The white czar has replaced the petit caporal, and the far cap the cocked hat, in the eyes of Englishmen of Usk's type, as an object of dread and detestation. He would never be in the least surprised if it turned out that the real object of Mme. Sabaroff's visit to Surrenden were to have possible opportunities to examine the facilities of Weymouth as a landing place for Cossacks out of the Muscovite corvettes.

"Russians are tremendous swells at palaver," he says, with much contempt; "gammon you no end if you like to believe 'em; they're always some political dodge or other behind it all."

"I don't say she isn't an agreeable woman," he continues now. His admiration of Mme. Sabaroff is much mitigated by his sense that she has a rather derisive opinion of himself. "I don't say she isn't an agreeable woman, but she gives me the idea of artificiality—insincerity—mystery."

"Just because she's a Russian!" cries his wife, with disdain.

"My dear George," observes Blanford, "there are preconceived ideas about all nationalities. As a rule, they are completely false. The received continental idea is that an Englishman is a bluff, blunt, unpleasant, opinionated person; very cross, very clean, too, it is true, but on the strength of his tub and his constitution, despising all the rest of mankind. Now, how completely absurd such an opinion is! You, yourself, are an example of the suaviter in modo, fortiter in re, of which the true-blue Briton always gives so admirable an example."

Usk laughs, but sulkily; he has the impression that his beloved friend is making fun of him but he is not quite sure. He himself believes that he is an ideal Englishman. Blanford is only half or a quarter of one; he does not shoot, wears furs in winter, only drinks very light Rhenish wine, never goes to any church, and never cuts his hair very short. Added to this, he has no fixed political opinion, except a general impression that England and the world in general are going down-hill as fast as they can, "tobogganing," as they say in Canada, at the rate of fifty miles a minute, to land in the slough of socialism and be picked out of it by some military despot; democracy invariably ending in absolutism.

"What ridiculous rubbish!" says his wife. "You might as well say that the demoiselles-monnequins at

A MUCH FINER FLOUR.

In the actual baking of bread there has not been such a noteworthy change; the necessity for the early delivery of fresh bread every morning still enables the local baker to maintain his place. Attempts at wider organization and co-operation have only been to a certain extent successful, but greater progress in this direction may be expected with the cheapening of motor conveyance.

In the wine industry similar changes have been effected. Keen competition, bad years, the ravages of vine pests and the introduction of many chemical novelties have rendered the old family vintages, famous for centuries in many cases, unable to keep abreast of the times with the usual result that they have been bought up to form part of larger concerns. With large capital these have been able to meet successfully various emergencies and to apply scientific methods to what has become a national industry.

DAIRY PRODUCTS.

Of more interest to us are the facts with regard to milk, butter and cheese. The growth of towns has necessitated bringing the larger part of their milk supply from a considerable distance and has led to the great increase in milk traffic on railways. Two-thirds of the milk supply of Paris is brought in by rail. This has called for elaborate methods of keeping the milk fresh and pure. The establishment of large milk companies has tended largely toward the standardization of the milk supply for instead of receiving the milk from one or two cows the customer obtains a uniform mixture from thousands of cows, and he has the assurance that it will always be pretty much of the same strength and quality.

Private butter making is giving place to commercial enterprises on a large scale. Butter making has become such a fine art, involving so many complicated processes, that the individual has been unable to afford the latest improvements in machinery. Much the same applies to the making of cheese, although in both cases certain circumscribed localities and small dairies with a well established reputation are able to maintain their place on the market.

BUTTER SUBSTITUTES.

The manufacturers of margarine, and other substitutes for butter, has had an important effect on the butter trade and has led to much legislation with the object of preserving agricultural interests. In France in 1908 the amount of butter substitutes manufactured was more than one-fifth of the amount of butter. The production of sugar, unlike that of butter and cheese, has never been an individual business. It has always involved costly plants and a large number of hands. Even here, however, the tendency for business to grow and for smaller ones to be merged in them is very marked. In 1870 there were in France 520 sugar manufactories, each producing an average of 770 tons. To-day there are only half that number, but their average production is four times as great.

Such is the movement—gradual, it is true, but none the less certain—which is creeping into our industrial customs, and which owes its initiation to the demand for better and cheaper production. Its future developments will be interesting to witness, and perhaps we flipped through the tent wards, changing away the odors of the apothecary. The innovation of the Nursing Sisters at Niagara camp was a distinct success. It is understood that the Militia Department have it under consideration to invite more trained nurses from the big hospitals to the summer camps throughout the Dominion. This policy would bear fruit in case of active service; the girls who have learned the routine of the regimental lines would then be able to superintend the operations of the military hospitals which would be established.

A Versatile Soldier.

Chartered accountant, graduate in agriculture, traveler, athlete and soldier, Lieut.-Col. James George Ross is one of the most all-round men in Montreal, where he was born in 1861. He has seen long service in the Canadian militia; beginning with the Ontario Field Battery at Guelph in 1879. At that time he was plugging up agriculture at the O.A.C. Just after he got his degree of B.S.A. from Guelph he took a trip to far-away Manitoba—about the time the C.P.R. was poking a nose into the province. After an extensive tour in the West he returned to Montreal and went into accounting in his father's office. At the same time he linked up with the Victoria Rifles; became identified with all the athletic and club life there was in Montreal—as well as much of its financial development, being soon at the head of his deceased father's firm. Snowshoe runner, life member of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, expert canoeist, crack player of Britannia Football Club—particularly on snowshoes, however, he made a name, having several medals and records on the wickers. But always interested in the militia, he went from the Victoria Rifles to the 5th Royal Highlanders, of which in 1909 he became lieutenant-colonel.

Shorter, But Not Uglier.

The English word "typist," as applied to a stenographer, as become familiar lately through the newspaper stories of the capture of Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve. The word is much more concise than stenographer, and might well be adopted in this country. The words "lift," as descriptive of an elevator, and "tram" of a street car, have also the advantage of brevity. The nomenclature of many things in England is preferably to that we in Canada employ.

Both Were Scared.

Charles Fox of Long Lake, near Brockville, met a black bear on the highway recently, and to escape a mix-up climbed a slender tree. The limb on which he stood broke and he fell to the ground directly in front of Bruin. The bear became frightened, as well as Fox, and both ran away in opposite directions.

"I noticed in the store we visited to-day everybody was crowded around the perfumery counter." "That's not surprising." "Why not?" "Oughtn't perfumer naturally be a scenter of attraction?"

SUMMER RECORDS OF CHILDREN'S DEATHS

Records show that by far the greatest number of deaths among little ones occur during the hot summer months. The excessive heat, the difficulty of keeping baby's milk sweet, improper food all tend towards bringing on those dreaded baby troubles—cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and other stomach and bowel troubles. To guard against these troubles Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent these deadly summer complaints or cure them if they come on suddenly. Mrs. O. Morin, Ste. Tite, Que., says: "My baby suffered from a severe attack of cholera infantum, but after giving him Baby's Own Tablets the trouble disappeared and he regained health splendidly." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

JAP'S FIRST BIRTHDAY.

On the anniversary of a Japanese boy's birthday his parents present him with a huge paper fish, made of a gayly painted bag, with a hoop of proper dimensions forming the mouth. A string is tied to the hoop and the fish is hoisted to a pole on the roof of the house. Then the wind rushing through causes the fish to swell out to the proper size and shape and gives it the appearance of swimming in the air. A Japanese boy carefully preserves every fish thus given to him and hangs them all out on each birthday anniversary.

TRAVEL.

Little Fish—"What are your summer plans?"
Big Fish—"I shall get away as usual."

LITERAL.

"Everything about Mrs. Milly-uns' house is in such good taste."
"Especially the dinners."

Sleeplessness.—Sleep is the great restorer and to be deprived of it is vital loss. Whatever may be the cause of it, indigestion, nervous derangement or mental worry, try a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. By regulating the action of the stomach, where the trouble lies, they will restore normal conditions and healthful sleep will follow. They exert a sedative force upon the nerves and where there is unrest they bring rest.

TWO CELEBRATIONS.

Miggles—"Congratulate me, old man, I'm preparing to celebrate my wooden wedding next week."
Wiggles—"And I'm going to celebrate my wouldn't wedding tomorrow. Just five years ago Miss Gotrox said she wouldn't marry me."

There are millions of packets of Wilson's Fly Pads sold every year, and every Pad will kill every fly that drinks the poisoned liquid from it.

AS IT HAPPENS.

His wife is away,
In the morning behold,
His breakfast toast's burned
And his coffee is cold!

USEFUL HINTS.

Orange juice with cracked ice can often be taken by a patient who can retain nothing else.

If nervous women would only drink more water they would not be so nervous, says a trained nurse.

For bleeding of the mouth or tongue a wash in cold water in which alum has been dissolved is very effective.

Common alum melted in an iron spoon over hot coals forms an exceedingly strong cement for joining glass, china or breakage of any kind.

Kerosene will remove tar, varnish and other like substance from the hands and will also cleanse varnish brushes.

A dash of vinegar added to the water in which eggs are poached will do much to prevent the eggs breaking in the cooking.

For the teeth nothing is better than five drops of lemon juice in a glass of water. It will remove the tartar and sweeten the breath.

In packing away hats see that they are not crushed in any way, and pack plenty of tissue paper around them to exclude any possible dust or light.

Small doses of cod liver oil are very useful for children who catch cold easily. They should be given two or three times a day, directly after food.

Children's undershirts should always be hung up by the shoulders and adults' skirts by the waistbands. It saves tearing the lace with the clothes-pins.

Turpentine mixed with carbolic acid and kept in open vessels about the room will greatly lessen the risk of contagion in scarlet fever, diphtheria, and kindred diseases.

To make celery sandwiches, chop one-quarter of a cupful of celery fine. Mix with one hard-boiled egg pressed through a sieve, and sufficient mayonnaise dressing or moisten properly.

To make strong buttonholes—Place a fine piece of muslin or lawn underneath the buttonhole and work it the same as usual. When it is all finished cut away the muslin close to the stitch.

To remove tea, coffee, cocoa or chocolate stains soak in cold water first, then place the stain over a bowl and pour boiling water through it, holding the tea kettle at a height to ensure force.

When roasting meat in an open pan, wet a clean white muslin cloth and lay over the top of the meat it will keep from getting hard and does not require basting so often, and the meat is much nicer.

To make apple snow, to a cup of strained apple sauce add the unbent whites of two eggs and sugar to taste. Beat hard with an egg beater for twenty minutes; then pile on a chilled glass dish and serve at once.

Old ribbons may be made to look as good as new by washing them in cold suds and ironing them just before they get dry. A piece of linen should be placed over them before passing the iron—which should not be too hot—over.

For cottage pudding a good recipe is one egg, one cup of sugar, one cup of milk, three cups of flour, and one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix and bake in a quick oven for three-quarters of an hour. Serve with sauce or cream.

PATRICIAN ENGLISH NAMES.

Saxon, Norman and Near-Norman are They.

An English writer has been classifying old families in a publication devoted to heraldry. The King, it appears, has the oldest pedigree, but it is wholly German. His Majesty is descended from Wittekind, first Duke of Saxony, who died in 807. Among the most famous patrician names of England, Ashburnham, Carew and Wolsey are Saxon; Bagot, Blount, Grosvenor, Stanley and Talbot came over with William the Conqueror, and the Courtenays, Fortescues, Digbys and Howards came over a little later. This genealogist has not heard of the little girl who claimed descent from Queen Boadicea. She was not a Carew, a Talbot or a Howard. "Our family is pretty good, you know," she said, "for most people can't go back farther than the Conqueror."

some time ago we emptied it, dried it well with a cloth, and poured

It has been in constant use ever bottom, and they never will dry

An editor who is rather addicted to saying undisputed things solemnly and disputed things dogmatically warns us not to overestimate the scope and role of humor. It is "almost limited to literature and conversation," and it originates nothing. War, birth, death, passion, great statesmanship and high ethics are in no wise associated with humor. Therefore, delightful as it is, its role is slight in the life of man. The conclusion does not follow from the premises. In the first place, however, humor is not "almost limited to literature and conversation." There is humor in music, even in "exalted" music. There is humor in the music of Mozart, Beethoven, Wagner, even of Bach, though not of the vulgar and detestable kind exemplified by some modern compositions. There is humor in painting and sculpture.

But even if there were not, if humor were limited to literature and conversation, its role would not be slight. Literature is "a criticism of life," Arnold said; it is interpretation of life—all life. It is possible to be humorous in dealing even with themes of high seriousness. There may be no humor in a budget and new taxes, but humor in presenting the new taxes "helps" considerably. It mollifies, disarms opposition, undermines mere selfishness. If certain British dukes had shown a little more humor in their speeches on the Lloyd-George budget, their own partisans would not have had to repudiate them. Humor is the "salt" of discussion, even of moral, metaphysical and philosophical discussion.

Even more may be claimed for humor. As every essayist on the subject has recognized, humor is kindly, sympathetic, humane. It has charity—the "greatest of these"—for its basis. It knows, understands, preserves proportions. And to do that is to teach the best philosophy to the world—to transfigure if not to "originate." The truly great humorists have been idealists, reformers, thinkers, preachers of sweet reasonableness and sympathy. They have laughed at absurdities and sometimes laughed them out of existence, but there was "constructive" thought back of their ridicule and caricature. It is a mistake to suppose that the humorist is indifferent to the fundamental principles of probity and honor, that he knows no righteous wrath, that he is cynical. Humor is sanity, wisdom, penetration. It abhors cant and humbug. It sees "things as they are," and to see things as they are is to see the probable and the possible in movements for making them different.

Magazine readers of the preceding generation may recall a short

THEY HAVE LEARNED TO LOVE

Looking Up and Out Men Were Redeemed From the Confines of Self.

"My soul thirsteth for the living God."—Psalm xlii., 2.

The conception of the deity, not as an object of cowardly dread, but as the sublime, all embracing life, the father of spirits, the source of all goodness and love and life, has probably done more than any other conception to weaken the powers of worship, to accustom us to sublime thoughts, and to win us from the pettiness of our lower levels of thinking.

There is reality in religious worship whenever it is lifted into this consciousness of a life that is larger than our own, great enough to take all our lives, with their needs and longings, hopes and fears, up into itself.

Out of such worship springs not dumb admiration, but deep desire to share such a life, to have a part in the divine work of the ages, to come nearer to such an ideal.

Thus worshipping men have learned to think with ever widening thoughts, to look beyond themselves, to see aims that called for sacrifice or arduous service.

They have learned to love. The fullness, richness and development of our lives depend upon our ability to worship, to recognize the thoughts that are worthy of reverence.

They who seek to define in precise terms their God, who would weigh and measure him, who insist that there can be only one way of thinking of him, who have uncovered his last secrets know him not at all.

THE FEAR OF THE LORD

is far from them; their short-sighted, petty pride in their own brain product has robbed them of all reverence. To them there is nothing greater than they can see, understand, and describe.

To limit the divine with definitions is to imagine that we can compass the infinite with our childish measuring lines, that we, born of the breath of to-day, are able nevertheless finally to declare every possible manifestation of the great life in which we live and move and have our being. That is not faith; that is but pride in our own knowledge and powers.

Yet our knowledge fails in much simpler things. The keenest inspection of the human body, of all that lies open to knife and eye, fails to discern the least trace of the real self, the personality; physiology can never describe my friend to me.

The walls and the windows do not make the home; it would ill become the carpenter to say there was no tenant simply because his two foot rule could not measure him.

May it not be so with this universe?

No man has seen God at any time; our researches give no clearer details than man's first rude endeavors to find him. But may there not be real personality to a universe just as there is to this smaller organism of myself? The redeeming thing about every body is that he is animated by that which is spiritual; the redeeming thing about the whole world may be the God at its heart.

Man's search for God is, after all, simply his attempt to answer his unceasing "What is the meaning of my own life and of this whole world of living beings and powers?" Finding in himself reason and affection man looks for the same attributes at the center of THAT LARGER LIFE.

The very action is inexplicable save as having like personality.

Men never manufactured their gods; out of our deep needs and questionings comes the consciousness of the divine and all-embracing life. Mock deities, fearsome figures may be pictured by the ambitious with which to cow the spirits of men, but the hungry heart of humanity clothes even these figures with its own beauties and attributes to them the graces that seem most desirable to it.

Think you that this world would be any the better place to live in for any of us if all men were seeking the things unseen, seeking truth and right and love and holiness, seeking to see their God in his world?

That would not mean a race of mystics; it would mean that men would build better engines, run safer trains with no less speed perhaps, because they were serving from greater motives than those of profit in money; they would be living in the light of eternal values.

We ought not to allow the mechanical structures of the theologians to hide from us the very sun of our universe, the sense that the characteristics and powers that constitute the values of personality to us, that which gives reality to friendship, is all to be found in the infinite and divine, that somewhere beats a heart for us all, that we may look up and cry Father.

TASTY RECIPES.

Pot Roast.—A tasty dish for luncheon.—One can red salmon, one egg, juice of one lemon. Season with salt and pepper to suit. Break the salmon apart with a fork and lightly mix with the other ingredients. Put this into a cake tin with a funnel centre and steam for twenty minutes. This will come out in the shape of a salmon loaf. While the salmon loaf is steaming prepare either fresh or canned peas by cooking fifteen or twenty minutes, and when done season with butter, pepper, and salt, and garnish the salmon loaf on the chop plate with the peas by filling the cavity formed by the funnel and spill generously over the loaf.

Sweet Salad Dressing.—Sweet salad dressing for apple, celery, walnuts, or any fruit or nuts desired.—Juice of two oranges, juice of three lemons, two eggs, one-half cup sugar, one cup of whipping cream. Beat juice of oranges and lemons with eggs, add sugar and boil till clear. Whip cream and stir thoroughly into mixture, but do not add cream till mixture is cool. Set away in a cool place. Just before ready to serve the salad cut the apple and celery into cubes and also cut the walnuts up fine and mix lightly with a fork and place on lettuce leaves and garnish with the above salad dressing. Half the recipe is sufficient to serve six.

Chicken in Peas.—Cut the chicken into joints, as for a fricassee or currie, and put into a saucepan with a quart of young shelled peas, one spoonful of butter, one small sliced onion, one spring of parsley, moisten with drippings, dusting with flour. Stew, covered, until done. Add a little salt and sugar just before serving.

Chili Sauce.—This chili sauce is made without boiling and will keep to the last bit. One peck ripe tomatoes chopped fine; sprinkle in 2 cups of salt and drain overnight. In the morning add 2 cupfuls of chopped celery, 4 small red peppers, chopped, 2 cupfuls chopped onions, 2 cupfuls brown sugar, 1 cupful of mustard seed, 1 teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon, 1 teaspoonful of powdered cloves, 2 quarts of cider vinegar. Mix and set away. Ready to eat in three days.

BREADS.

Nut Bread.—One cupful of sweet milk, one-half cupful of sugar, three-fourths cupful of English walnut meats, three cupfuls of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one egg, pinch salt. Beat egg and sugar together, add flour in which baking powder has been sifted, then the milk and last the nut meats ground. Put in tins and let raise one hour and bake.

Oatmeal Bread.—Two cupfuls of sponge, two cupfuls of breakfast food over which pour one cupful of boiling water and let stand until lukewarm, one cupful of raisins, one-half cupful New Orleans molasses, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of lard; mix together with white flour and treat as white bread.

Magazine readers of the preceding generation may recall a short story entitled "Mrs. Knollys," written by F. J. Stimson. Mrs. Knollys was a young bride, and her wedding tour took her to Switzerland, where her husband was lost in the crevasses of a glacier. Glaciers move slowly, but they move—inch by inch, season after season. The young widow was assured that the ice would yield up her husband's body after forty years. In due course the young man of twenty-five was restored to the faithful mourner of sixty.

Whether fiction follows fact or fact follows fiction, a similar drama is expected to end this summer at Chamouni. In 1870 John C. Randall, a bank official of Quincy, Mass., was lost in the great Bossons glacier on Mount Blanc. His daughter has twice visited the glacier in recent years, and this season it is thought that the ice will give up his body to filial affection and to Christian burial. The daughter is now older than the father, as the waiting wife was older than the lost husband. The ice, incorruptibly preservative, will yield the actual "form and pressure," the precise physiognomy and costume of forty years ago. The experience, whether in fact or in fiction, is unique and touching, and the world will await with sympathetic interest so unusual a return and reunion.

A FAMILIAR WARNING.

Mrs. Jones's favorite warning to her young progeny when they were in mischief was that she would tend to them in a minute. "Tending" was accomplished by applying her open hand where it would do the most good. When Harry was four years old he was sent for the first time round the corner to the grocery. In a few minutes he came trotting soberly back with the nickel still in his hand, but no bag of onions.

"What's the matter?" asked his mother.

"I'm afraid of the man," he said solemnly.

"Oh, he won't hurt you," reassured Mrs. Jones. "Run along and bring the onions. I'm in a hurry for them."

A second time Harry disappeared round the corner, and a second time returned without his purchase.

"I'm afraid of the grocer man," he explained, as before.

"Well, what makes you afraid of him?" demanded his mother, impatiently.

"Why," answered the little fellow, "bofe times when I goed in, he looked at me, an' said, 'I'll tend to you in a minute!'"

"What is the secret of happiness?" asked the young person. "The secret of happiness," replied the sage of Sageville, "consists of being perfectly satisfied with what you haven't got."

Lesson XIII. Temperance Lesson

Gal. 5. 15-26. Golden Text,

Gal. 5. 25.

Verse 15. If ye bite (outbursts of anger) and devour (continued hatred)—This is in contrast to the spirit of love which Paul has just said is the fulfillment of the law. The Galatians were a naturally contentious people, and party spirit at this time was rife. Note the repetition of one another; the harm done by their quarrelsomeness was mutual, and the outcome could only be the disintegration of the spiritual life (consumed) of both parties.

16. But I say—What he has already said is that, while a Christian is free, he is not to abuse his liberty. Now he is going to show wherein the highest freedom consists, namely, in walking, or making persistent progress day by day, by the help of the indwelling Holy Spirit. If the Spirit is in full control, then the flesh, or sinful tendencies and perversities of the heart, is ruled out.

17. Flesh lusteth against the Spirit—This is to be taken in its distinctly theological sense (compare Rom. 8.). Paul in this way distinguishes between the sinful elements in man's nature which have come to him through the flesh, and the divine life which comes through the regenerating influence of the Spirit. Naturally these two are mutually exclusive and hostile.

May not do the things that ye would—The best commentary on these words is the seventh chapter of Romans where Paul gives his pathetic description of the condition of a man who remains in bondage to the flesh until Christ sets him free.

18. Led by the Spirit—The Christian is thus represented as being held back from danger and sin by the controlling power of the Spirit. In this situation the struggle with the flesh has ceased. Here Paul shifts from the word "flesh" to the word "law." The two are indeed interchangeable; so long as a man remains under the law, as his master, he cannot have dominion over the flesh; and so long as the flesh rules him the law stands over him to condemn. But where the Spirit holds sway law is no longer needed. The Christian does right under the impulse of the Spirit of Christ acting from within, and not from fear or a sense of duty trying to meet the behests of law. For the mature Christian, therefore, the ideal would be for the law to be abolished.

19. The works of the flesh—They fall under four heads, which, however, are not marked with absoluteness: (1) Sensuality; (2) idolatry; (3) bitter variance with one's neighbor; (4) want of moderation. It will be seen that these evils touch every part of a man's nature, and are not merely "fleshy" in the ordinary sense. They reach out also to his social relations and his responsibilities to God.

Fornication, uncleanness, and lasciviousness are general terms for vile sexual excesses which were so common among the heathen of Paul's time that he was obliged repeatedly to rebuke them in unsparring terms.

20 Sorcery—The use of magic for evil purposes. Belief in magic spells, incantations, witchcraft was extremely prevalent in Paul's day.

periences and acts of their neighbors.

21. As I did forewarn you — The apostle has already, in his teaching among them, declared with pointed plainness of speech that such things are absolutely foreign to the kingdom of God, and that a man must cease from these before he can hope to become a member thereof.

22. The fruit—The things which are evil are correctly described as "works," inasmuch as we produce them unaided. But fruit must have the fostering care of another. In this case it is the Spirit who from the unpromising soil of human hearts is able to bring forth the most astonishing results.

Love rightly heads the list. The catalogue may for convenience be divided into three groups of three each, though there are no rigid lines. The members of the second group go well together, and signify a patient "holding out of the mind before it gives room to action or passion" (Trench).

Faithfulness—The word here is actually "faith," and seems to stand for fidelity, or that quality of character which makes it always to be relied upon.

23. Meekness—The absence of a vengeful spirit. Positively, the preservation of patience under provocation.

Self-control—Mastery over the lower passions. Notice that while it is called the control of self by self, it is really the outcome of the Spirit's controlling the self, that is, the entire personality.

Against such . . . no law — The law cannot condemn that which is the very fulfillment of the law.

24. Have crucified the flesh—To take on Christ Jesus by faith is virtually to die to the lusts of the flesh, for, to be alive to Christ is to be dead to everything opposed to his Spirit.

25. "The inner life should rule the outer life."

26. The faults here mentioned, of indulging in foolish rivalries, and giving way to jealousies, and cherishing grudges, were the sort that brought the Galatians under Paul's condemnation. So the lesson concludes, where it began; and properly, for there are no more insidious foes to the spiritual life than these.

ACTIVE POSSESSION.

Guinevere, aged 4, was going out to walk with a young lady, of whom she was very fond. As they opened the street door, they were met by a swirling cloud of dust, blown up from the thoroughfare.

"Keep your lips closed, Gwen, or you'll get your lungs full of microbes," warned the young lady.

Guinevere pondered a moment and then looking up demanded:

"What are your crobes?"

LOGICAL.

"Mother," asked little Ethel "now that you're in mourning for Cousin Adelaide, will you wear black nightdresses, too?"

"What an absurd question child!"

"Oh, I only thought you might be as sorry at night as you were during the day," ventured Ethel.

AS PA SEES IT.

Little Little Willie—"Say, pa, what is vulgar ostentation?"

Pa—"Vulgar ostentation, my son, is the display made by people who have more money to make it with than we have."

Food over which pour one cupful of boiling water and let stand until lukewarm, one cupful of raisins, one-half cupful New Orleans molasses, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of lard; mix together with white flour and treat as white bread.

Baking Hint.—When your bread fails to rise, don't throw the dough away, and by all means don't attempt to bake it. Instead, take a teaspoonful of flour, two heaping teaspoons of baking powder, a scant teaspoonful of lard and enough warm milk to make a sticky dough. Work this in with the other dough; roll and cut into biscuits. Then bake quickly. The result will be biscuits so nice and light that they are superior to ordinary baking powder or soda biscuits. The proportions of dough are half of each kind.

CANDY.

Fruit Fudge.—Fruit fudge, something new and delicious: Three cupfuls of granulated sugar, one-half cupful of milk, one tablespoonful of butter, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, one-half cupful of nut meats, one-half cupful of figs, dates, or raisins, and one-half cupful of shredded coconut. Boil sugar, butter, and milk until a soft ball forms when dropped into water. Remove from fire and set in a dish of cold water after vanilla has been added. Cool until almost cold; heat rapidly, adding nuts and fruit. Pour into platter and cut into squares.

Butter Fudge.—Boil six tablespoonfuls of sugar, two of butter, and twelve of corn syrup in a pan till it forms a soft ball when tried in water. Take from fire and beat till creamy. Pour on a buttered platter and cut in squares. This makes just a small recipe, about one-half of usual fudge recipe.

Chocolate Fudge.—Take two cupfuls of granulated sugar, one cupful of milk, a quarter of a cake of unsweetened chocolate, and tutter the size of a walnut. Let this boil until it will harden in cold water. Just as the flame has been turned out under the pan stir in a few drops of flavoring, lemon, vanilla, rose, or any favorite extract. Either beat with a fork until it begins to stiffen or pour immediately on a marble slab. When almost cool cut in squares with a buttered knife. A marble slab is preferred to a pan on account of the great ease in cutting and because it is absolutely flat, while a pan may be a trifle curved, and thus spoil the lines of the cake. One must watch and stir the preparation, as it is apt to burn.

FISH.

Twenty Minute Codfish Balls.—Cut and pick dry codfish in small pieces, freed from bone and skin, and soak in cold water while you peel and dice potatoes. Take two cupfuls of codfish to four cupfuls of diced potatoes. Put in cold water and boil until potatoes are tender drain water off, and mash as for mashed potatoes; season with butter and pepper and beat in one egg well. Drop from spoon into hot fat and fry a delicate brown. Garnish with lettuce or parsley. They are nice and light and can be prepared in twenty minutes. This quantity will serve four persons.

Fish Hint.—In order to dispense with the disagreeable odors when baking fish the following method is suggested: After cleaning and washing the fish thoroughly, season well with salt and pepper and dredge it sparingly with flour, both inside and out, and roll in manilla paper of three thicknesses. Fold and pin together securely the edges of the paper in order to prevent the escape of the juices. Bake in moderate oven, but allow fifteen minutes longer than baking the same fish in a pan. When ready to serve remove the paper to which the skin of the fish will have adhered and place the fish upon a platter. In this way the fish is left juicy and delectable.

SOME USES FOR SALT.

It is well to wipe up floors with salt water.

Salt removes discolorations from the carpet.

Mattings should be washed with salt water and wiped dry.

Clean willow furniture by a good scrubbing with salt water.

Sewer gas is counteracted if a handful of salt be placed in the basin.

Enamel may be cleaned by an application of salt moistened with vinegar.

Black and white goods may be safely washed if salt is added to the water.

A smouldering or dull fire may be cleared for broiling by a handful of salt.

Copper and glass may be cleaned by dipping half a lemon in fine salt and then rubbing the soiled article.

Odors of strong smelling foods may be removed from cooking utensils by placing them, bottom side up, over salt which has been put on a hot stove.

USEFUL MINTS.

When the mincing machine needs oiling use a drop of glycerine. This will prevent any risk of disagreeable taste or smell and will make the machine work easily.

The success of a meat pie or pudding depends on having the meat tender and well cooked, the gravy rich and properly seasoned, and the crust light and digestible.

To preserve meat take a quart of best vinegar, two ounces of salt, and boil these together for a few minutes. When cold brush it on to the meat to be preserved.

If the bacon is too salt place a little water in the pan in which you intend frying it. Let the water come to a boil, then pour the water off and cook the bacon in the usual manner.

The great secret of a pleasant meal is to have everything that is required to eat it on the table. Nothing is so irritating as to have to be sending out of the room for odd forks and spoons.

For a minced meat pie take two tablespoonfuls each of chopped beef, suet, apples, raisins, currants and sugar, pastry. Mix the ingredients and put them in a pie-dish and cover with flaky crust.

Mashed turnips should be prepared this way:—Boil the turnips, drain and mash them thoroughly with a fork against the sides of the saucepan. Take care there are no lumps. Add pepper, salt and a little butter.

Before cleaning brown boots rub over with milk—a little is sufficient. Wipe with a dry cloth and clean with polish as usual. This will clean and soften the leather; the grease in the milk keeps it moist. Stains can be removed by soaking the discolored parts with benzine and letting it dry.

To prevent irons from rusting wrap them in brown paper and put them away in a dry place. If they have already become rusty they

HOW WADI MADE NUMBERS.

One day in a primary school the children were making figures on the board. There was a little boy there who came from Egypt. He was only five years old, so all the others watched him to see what he would do. They wanted to see the funny numbers he would make. But Wadi went to the board and made our figures without any trouble—ten of them—without any help from the teacher!

She was so surprised and so pleased! And all the children wondered. For they could not make theirs half so well. It was true that he laid the figure one down flat on its back. And he made the hook of the figure five before he made the shaft. But they were a very nice set of figures for all that.

Nobody in this country had even taught him to write them, and this was the first time he had been to an English school. So the teacher was puzzled. She asked Wadi what language his teacher taught him to write in Egypt. Then he spoke up real loud, and said, "In Arabic, teacher." That explained it all. For ours are Arabian figures, too.

Then the teacher told them the story of how we came to get them. She said, "Years and years ago all the people who used to speak English and Latin and Greek made the figures we call Roman numerals. We do so still when we number our chapters or our paragraphs and some other things. And the Romans said they took them from the Greeks, their clever next-door neighbors."

"When men went to those Eastern countries, long, long ago, on pilgrimages and to war, they found many of the people who lived all round Arabia counting with the same nice, easy figures you are using to-day. When they asked the sheiks, or Arab chiefs, how they had first made up such nice numbers, these had to say, like the Romans with their letters, 'Next-door neighbor.' For they had borrowed them from the people who lived in India. The Chinese people who lived next door on the other side of India, had taken a few, too; but they did not take them all, only enough to multiply with, so that every big number as they wrote it was a little example in multiplication. If they wanted to say thirty, they would write the queer Chinese sign for ten and then put a tiny number three high up on the left side for the multiplier."

"So the men from Europe learned the number signs and practised writing them, too. Then they told the people of other countries about them on their long way home. But the people who painted and wrote the first books—for there was no printing then—said:

"We like our own letter numbers the best. We are used to them. They are like nice old friends. We like our numbers all made up of lots of letters. You can use your queer number signs if you like for buying and selling. But we shall keep on using letter numbers for our books." And if you will look at the beginning of the chapters of any book, you will see that somebody thinks so still.

We have used the new numbers into them. These held fairly well, but the trouble was that the posts would rot. That did not matter so much those days, for posts were cheap. The trouble was that we had to go over the fence and repair it and waste all sorts of time over it. In fact, the fence was the bane of our lives, and must have cost a lot to keep in repair.

"A good many accidents took place, one way and another, with those fences, which it seems to me now must have cost father even more than the fences did. I remember one night the horses got tearing around the fields and bumped into a part of the fence which had been neglected for some time past, for the reason that we were busy harvesting the hay. There was a field of green grain. The horses got into it and trampled all over it; but worse than that they gorged themselves with it, with the result that the following day, and the other two were barely pulled through by the aid of a veterinary from the nearest town.

"As I was about to say, my brother, who lives on part of the old farm, took me down to the old line fence, just to look at the place where the horses broke through that time. He told me that when he saw cement being used so much he wondered if it wouldn't be a good thing to make fence posts of, so that they would not rot or break. He got into touch with a cement firm, without further delay, with the result that they sent him full instructions regarding the making of cement fence posts.

"Jack was very proud of his fence, and it struck me, when he showed it to me, that I had never seen anything nicer. It was as straight as a die, and there wasn't a sign of a break in it from end to end. The posts were all upright and the wire—it was smooth wire—was as tight and as trim as it used to be on Judge Foster's lawn. Jack asked me how long I thought it was since the fence was built. I told him perhaps a few months—four or five months. 'Well,' said he, 'make it years instead of months and you would be nearer it.'

"It was a fact that for half a dozen years that fence had stood there, and that during that time not a break had taken place, and Jack had not spent five minutes looking after it.

THE CHEAPEST FENCE.

"I asked my brother if the fence had not been a little costly.

"Said he: 'That's the cheapest fence I ever had on my farm. It cost more to begin with than the old kind we used to have so much trouble with when we were boys, but once put up it is there forever. Those posts can never rot. The longer they are up, the harder and the stronger they become. I made a few little mistakes when I began the work, but they were not serious, and I now know how to provide against them. One of the great advantages of this sort of fence is that it never needs to be repaired. I suppose, in the course of time, the wire will rust out and break, but that will not be the fault of the posts; and as you will remember, it was always the posts that used to give us the worry when we were boys.'

"I asked him if the posts never loosened and fell over to one side in the way that used to make so much work for us in the old days. 'Well,' said he, 'they do, lots

BEAUTY AND UTILITY.

A large number of prominent men in all four of the dairy breeds are very fond of saying something like this:

"In our efforts to promote the dairy quality in our cows we must not lose sight of beauty."

It is the candid opinion of Hoard's Dairyman that no one thing has hindered so much the progress of making large producing cows as this vain struggle after so-called beauty. We say "so-called" for the reason that no two men will agree on what they mean by "beauty."

Some think delicacy of form, a certain refinement of head, body and legs, constitute "beauty." Others look for impressiveness, that something that goes with size, amplitude of form, making what they would call a "grand looking cow."

But the majority consider beauty to be a certain refined femininity of form, which we see more in the Island bred type of Jerseys and Guernseys.

Fortunately for the Holstein breed, and considerably so among the Ayrshires these notions of attenuated refinement do not exist to any great degree. Consequently the breeders of these cattle, especially the Holsteins, have followed the teachings of nature, with only one dominating idea,—since they got rid of the dual-purpose notion,—that of breeding for large producing animal alone.

But among the Jerseys and Guernseys serious danger exists to-day of being led away from the final goal in a vain pursuit after beauty of form. Hence the show-ring and its attendant ideas of outline keep crowding in upon us in every effort to breed large producing animals with strong, enduring constitution.

We hear a great deal said about the "straight back" when if we look at the great cows in any breed that have given name fame to their breed, the straight back rarely prevails. Why is it that breeders and judges are so unwilling to be guided by nature in her effort to fashion a cow that shall be a large producer?

Delicacy of outline means too often lack of ability to endure the strain of large production.

In seventy-five per cent. of the great producers in my breed, we find a certain rugged, angularity of form. The large paunch—a big basket—almost always accompanies the power to produce heavily. And yet the large paunch and the rugged outline do not suit the prevailing notions of beauty.

We believe breeders should look after two things in their breeding: a constantly increasing power to produce well and strong, enduring constitution. Now, the latter too frequently does not accompany the refined beauty type.

We must study more the physiology of dairy breeding. That will teach us that certain things do not harmonize well, such, for instance, as beauty of form and constitution; beauty of form and large capacity for production.

Let the chief aim and end of breeding be the production of bulls of strong constitution and prepotency and cows of a vigorous, ample type of body. To this end we must clean with polish as usual. This will clean and soften the leather; the grease in the milk keeps it moist. Stains can be removed by soaking the discolored parts with benzine and letting it dry.

To prevent irons from rusting wrap them in brown paper and put them away in a dry place. If they have already become rusty they may be brightened again by rubbing them over a smooth board sprinkled with white sand.

Never ask a sick person what he will have to eat. Give him a surprise in the shape of some dainty, and the probability is that he will readily eat it.

A cheap disinfectant to use when scrubbing or washing utensils in a sick room is made by adding a teaspoonful of turpentine to every pailful of hot water. Turpentine is a powerful disinfectant, and will dispel all bad odors.

Sir Victor Horsley said alcohol was the commonest cause of disease. Long before the poisonous effect was developed in a man or woman alcohol had begun to undermine the morality of the home, and to cause disease and vice in many serious ways.

A SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY.

Psalm 103: 4, 5.

Beneath these fair Canadian skies
This summer day we meet
The choicest gifts to recognize,
While you we gladly greet.
Affection prompts your friends to say,

With heart and voice and pen,
May gladness crown your natal day
At three score years and ten.

Those whom you loved long years ago
Are loved and cherished yet;
Their lives, while shadows longer grow,
You never will forget.
They all have passed beyond that line

Which marks the lives of men;
But you are here by grace divine
At three score years and ten.

With those you loved your voice to raise
Who journeyed with you here:
They now with songs of endless praise
Before the throne appear.
You think of their exalted state
And hail its glories then,
While you this birthday celebrate
At three score years and ten.

From lasting good and passing ill
You have not failed to glean
Those treasures which are meant to fill
The heart with joy serene.

To us you speak with cheerful voice
Of things beyond our ken,
While in your birthday we rejoice
At three score years and ten.

And while you calmly homeward move,
May you rejoice to see
That guided by unfailing love
The best is yet to be.
May you enjoy through coming miles
Of mountain, vale and glen,
That love which now upon you smiles
At three score years and ten.

And if you will look at the beginning of the chapters of any book, you will see that somebody thinks so still.

We have used the new numbers only three hundred years. It was only about the time that the Pilgrims came to America that the people of England began to use these Arabic figures.

So this is the way we came to borrow Wadi's number signs. The first borrowing happened so very long ago that almost everybody has forgotten about it. And we didn't mean to steal either, you know. Nobody cared to keep their numbers all to themselves. This is why Wadi could surprise us all by just writing his own number work.—

CONCRETE FENCE POSTS

THE CHEAPEST THAT CAN BE PUT UP.

These Posts Can Never Rot, and They Never Need to be Repaired.

"One of the most striking changes amongst the farmers in the vicinity of my old home," said the travelling agent of a large Canadian firm of agricultural implement manufacturers, upon his return from a visit to his birthplace, in the State of New York, recently, "is the better and more permanent character of the buildings and various farm improvements."

"I remember how, years ago, it took my father and all three of us boys one whole day to harvest a certain field. The present owner of the place says that his young son now does that work in a single day, and so far as he can see he never even has to mop his brow."

Talking with some of the farmers in that section, regarding the methods of the present day, as compared with the past, I find that a very great saving has been effected by the introduction of the use of cement. The price of this article, when I was a boy, was almost prohibitive. In fact, we had hardly ever heard of cement at all, and when we did, it was more as a luxury—an article to mend the dishes in mother's kitchen—rather than as an article to be used out on the farm. Now-a-days, most of the boys have been learning how to use it, and no matter where you go you are sure to see something made of it.

HIS BROTHER'S FENCE.

"I was particularly struck with a fence which my brother put up on his place some years ago. My brother and I, you must know, particularly hated looking after fences. We used to prop the posts up mainly by aid of the stones we had picked off the property. Somehow these stones would get removed, and down would come the fence. Father used to be a little hard on us sometimes we thought. When the other boys were off playing he used to set us at work repairing these fences. As the stones wouldn't hold the posts up, he made us dig holes deep in the ground, and drive the posts down or time, the wire had rusted out and break, but that will not be the fault of the posts; and as you will remember, it was always the posts that used to give us the worry when we were boys."

"I asked him if the posts never loosened and fell over to one side in the way that used to make so much work for us in the old days."

"Well," said he, "they do loosen sometimes. But do you remember how solid the wooden posts used to be after they had been in the ground a good while and before they began to rot. The longer they remained there, the solder they became. That's the way with these posts. I never have to tinker with them, so that they are never disturbed, but are allowed to become

IMBEDDED IN THE EARTH.

I have sunk them pretty deep, so that the frost will not affect them, and the result is that the fence is always just as you see it now. The strongest man on this farm could hardly move one of those posts. I am just now completing the last fence on my farm, and after it is finished the fence problem on this place will be settled forever. No more time will be wasted looking after them, and there will be no danger of the horses breaking in like they did at this spot thirty years ago, or so—as you may remember."

"I remembered all right, and as we stood there laughing, we instinctively began rubbing the sore spots once more, which father left on us upon that memorable occasion."

ALMOST.

"You must understand, dear," said the beautiful young woman who was about to become the bride of an old man, "that I am marrying you only for your money."

"Yes, I know, sweetheart, but I come of a long-lived family and I am sure that I can teach you to love me in time."

In that moment he almost lost her.

HEE HAW.

A blustering politician who believed in personal methods was addressing a political meeting in the North of England, and was interrupted several times by a hostile listener. At last he lost his temper. "Who brayed there?" he called out, sarcastically. "No one," came back the prompt retort, "it was only an echo."

SLURRING THE BISCUIT.

"Thanks fer de biscuit, mum," remarked Dusty Rhodes, "but you mistake me errand in dis community."

"What d'ye mean?"

"I'm studying social conditions, not geology."

It's better to keep your face closed than to get into trouble by telling the truth.

A soft answer turneth away wrath, but it isn't so successful in turning away a book agent.

Don't over-estimate your own ability. Many a better man than you has had to take a licking.

will teach us that certain things do not harmonize well, such, for instance, as beauty of form and constitution; beauty of form and large capacity for production.

Let the chief aim and end of breeding be the production of bulls of strong constitution and prepotency and cows of a vigorous, ample type of body. To this end we must study well the limitations of form as nature prescribes them in the best specimens of the breed.

We must remember always that we cannot go beyond the nature of anything. All there is to breeding improved animals of any kind is to amplify or increase the function we so much desire.

To do that we must look for the natural form of such function. If we inject artifice of the main notions of outline, of beauty or of fancy of any kind, we will do so at the sacrifice of the main purpose we are after. Consider, first that the animal body is a mechanical contrivance. Everywhere in mechanics the machine must have a form suited to its function. The great ruling idea of nature is function. With the sewing machine it is sewing, with the mowing machine it is mowing. Each machine must have form suited to its purpose, its function.

Here is the bed rock idea in nature. In animal machinery the law is the same. We are after the production of milk making machines that shall work most harmoniously and enduringly to the end of milk production. Keep breeding to the best milk producers, the most ample mother, and nature will take care of the form. She will give us the form best suited to that purpose if we keep our false artificial notions of beauty out of the way. But we must be obedient first of all to the physiological laws nature establishes for the accomplishment of her purposes. Beyond nature we cannot go.

SHOPPING.

"I'm looking for something for about thirty-five cents," she said sweetly.

"A souvenir," replied the clerk, "Here's a very pretty one for fifty cents."

"Dear me, I don't want to pay that much. I want a gift for a very dear friend at home."

NOT THAT MEANING.

"The doctor said that Bill was drunk when we took the poor fellow to have his head attended to last night after he fell."

"Doctor never said anything of the kind!"

"Didn't I hear him? Said it was a jagged cut."

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section along side his homestead. Price, $300 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent and cultivate fifty acres extra).

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $300 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $500.00.

For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

CURED OF CONSTIPATION

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N. S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box.

The Canton Man

A Tale of South China

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Dr. Osmond sat on the veranda of his bungalow trying to be content in the knowledge that his enforced rest from the daily grind of his Hong-kong practice was proving very beneficial to his health as well as to his projected book on "Chinese Temple Ruins." And because the famous Lenchou temple ruins were in the neighborhood he had gone no farther north than the coast town of Ko-Ngan.

Within the jasmine draped veranda all was dark save the red glow of the doctor's cigar. Overhead the great punkah fan swayed to and fro, stirring the air into refreshing coolness.

A sampan bumped against the little landing, and there came the slap-slap of bare running feet on the ground outside, then the gate in the garden wall creaked slowly on its hinges, a shadowy form flitted up the path between the oleanders and flung itself in a crumpled heap at the foot of the steps and somebody's longcue struck the floor like the snap of a whiplash.

"Well, what's the matter?" asked the doctor sharply. "Who is it?"

"The great doctor's contemptible servant whose honored father"—the whine died away in a choking sob.

Dr. Osmond half rose to his feet. "You are the Canton man who called me to town yesterday? Your father is worse?"

"Nay, the great foreign-doctor cured my revered father of a fever," whined the Chinese. "Newt's eye and an owl's membrane were of no avail, but the black medicine of the foreign lord brought my parent to life.

"I am grateful to the great physician. I would reward him generously for saving my father's life. I am a poor man, but I have knowledge that may repay the great lord for his goodness," whined the Canton man.

"I want no reward, my man. I am glad your father is better. Do you want some more of the black medicine?"

"No more medicine is needed. My father is well and happy. The foreign doctor is interested in the ruins of the temple in the walnut grove?"

"Yes."
 "He has perhaps wondered what became of the sacred image of the Goddess of Mercy whose fame is on every tongue, but whose face has never been looked upon since the earth dragon shook down the temple a century ago?" "By Jove, yes." The doctor leaned forward eagerly.

"He has perhaps heard of the priceless jewels hung upon the sacred form—offerings from royal pilgrims of many ages. He has heard of the great emerald that a son of heaven took from his royal brow and placed in the hand of the Goddess of Mercy? The great

"Yes, a brave man. Again and again with his handful of men he has ridden many miles in the rear of your lines and attacked guards much larger than his force. His only mistake has been that he is not a soldier in the army. Consider that these boys are full of zeal. They have not stopped to think that they should make war in a certain fashion. They love a life of freedom and dread the restraint of the military service."

"That's the kind for soldiers," added Coleman, "once they are trained."

"When you surprised us tonight what do you suppose I was doing? I was trying to persuade Carroll to take his men into the regular Confederate service. Ever since he has been a partisan leader I have feared this result. When I last saw him I resolved that when he came again I would not cease my efforts with him till I had secured his consent. Had you been an hour later I would have gained it before you arrived."

The girl's able pleading for her lover and his men, whom she never failed to include with him, had its effect on the captain. The strain on his heart was greater than the strain had been on his nerves on any field of battle. He wished that he were the general, that he might grant this girl's request, that he might spare the lives of these boys, some of whom were barely sixteen, many of whom were not twenty-one, and none but a few years past their majority. Doubtless many of them were loved by some girl. A case of love and duty on the one hand and whether he would consider that the interests of the Union came and the army defending it demanded the death of the partisans.

Dolly Peyton remained during the day in care of her mother and others of the family. Coleman, understanding the agony of suspense she suffered, went to Bates and told him that he was permitted to go to his betrothed. Bates thanked him, went to Dolly, but remained only a short while. The strain was great, and she was better able to bear it with her mother.

As the afternoon wore on Dolly, who was becoming uncontrollable, broke away and went to a window, where she could see a bit of road several miles distant. A cavalryman was coming leisurely. He was a machine to carry orders or be shot as the case demanded without knowledge, except that he was doing what was expected of him. Coleman, hearing Dolly wildly calling on the messenger to "Come, for heaven's sake come; I shall die!" mounted his horse and rode out to get the dispatch.

When the captain on his return galloped up to the house Dolly stood on the balcony, her lover beside her, her eyes wild with suspense. He waved the paper over his head to signal "life" instead of "death," and Dolly fell limp into the hands of the man whose life was all the world to her. Then Coleman ordered the captives to be brought up before the house, and he read aloud the general's order:

The request of Miss Dolly Peyton that her lover and his men be not executed as guerrillas on condition that they fight no more against the United States except as regularly commissioned or enlisted men in the Confederate armies is granted.

Several of the men thus relieved fainted; a number staggered as if drunk; the rest broke into a wild cheer.

Later the partisans, having been paroled, went in a body to thank the girl who had turned a certain death into life. Then they scattered, most of them going to their homes.

Intoxicated by Tobacco.

Giving evidence against a man on a charge of disorderly conduct at Bow street police court, a constable said that the accused behaved in a very violent and disorderly manner in Leicester square on Tuesday evening. He quarreled with a cabman, and eventually the witness took him into custody, believing him to be drunk. At the police station the prisoner denied that he had been drinking, and the doctor who examined him reported that he had chewed tobacco to such an extent that it had had the same effect upon him as alcohol.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Real Laziness.

The Little Russians—those of the south—are said to be cleverer than the Russians of the north, but they are lazy—just how lazy may be gathered from this quotation from Mr. Maurice Baring's book, "Russian Essays and Stories."

"The Little Russian," said a Little Russian gentleman to me, "is so lazy that he will say to his wife, 'Little wife, say whoa to my horse. I have a pain in my tongue.'"

Progressive.

"When did you commit your first fatal extravagance?"

"When my boss referred to my wages as my 'salary.'"

"And when did you perpetrate this latest folly?"

"The day my wife called my salary my 'income.'"—Cleveland Leader.

forward eagerly.
"He has perhaps heard of the priceless jewels hung upon the sacred form —offerings from royal pilgrims of many ages. He has heard of the great emerald that a son of heaven took from his royal brow and placed in the hand of the Goddess of Mercy? The great foreign physician would like to see all these splendors and perhaps choose some for himself?"

"Your story sounds incredible, and yet—can you take me to the ruins now?"

"Yes. It is but a few steps to the walnut grove."
"Wait, then, while I make ready."
Still skeptical as to the truth of the native's story, Dr. Osmond equipped himself with cap and stout oaken stick from the rack in the breast pocket of his white coat; was another weapon without which he never traveled in this country of doubtful friends—small and heavy and shining and very deadly looking when one faced its muzzle.

The doctor lighted a paper lantern for the Canton man, and this, augmented by the white triangular ray from his electric pocket lamp, lighted their way through the garden to a gate in the south wall that gave into a tangled field.

On the farther side of the field the walnut grove loomed blackly.
Under the trees the doctor and his guide picked their way among the crumbling columns and scattered stones of the fallen temple.

Suddenly the Chinese paused and swung his lantern about with a swift circular movement, lighting up heaps of broken rocks and columns, rough and forbidding, just as they had fallen.
He beckoned to Osmond, and the latter bent his back and followed his guide through an opening among the debris that grew larger as they advanced. The ground sloped suddenly, and he felt several stone steps beneath his feet. He paused while the Chinese lifted a slab of stone and then another and motioned him forward.

"If the great lord will go on ahead, his servant will arrange the opening that we may have air."

Nothing loath, Osmond moved down three shallow steps and found himself in a small chamber choked with debris.
Before he could look around there was the dull clang of falling stone, and he rushed up the steps only to knock his head against the stone that covered the entrance.

It did not need the derisive cries of the Canton man to reveal to Dr.
Osmond that he had been the victim of a very flimsy plot. His threats and commands only brought forth insults from the lips of the Chinese.

"Ah—foreign devil doctor—you cast off robbers who will murder and pillage our people as well as yours."

The captain was attentive, but he had nothing to say. How could he argue a matter of justice with a girl whose lover he expected to be ordered to shoot in cold blood?

"Guerrillas are monsters," she continued, "and should be shot whenever captured. At least I would not move a hand to save them. But these boys are gentlemen's sons. They are fighting for a cause which they consider to be just. Their leader, Carrol Bates, comes of one of the oldest families in Tennessee."

"And a brave man," the captain put in.

wasn't that the general, that he might grant this girl's request, that he might spare the lives of these boys, some of whom were barely sixteen, many of whom were not twenty-one, and none but a few years past their majority. Doubtless many of them were loved by some girl. A case of boys and girls on the one hand and grim death on the other!

After the girl's last words, seeing that Coleman was thinking, Dolly refrained from speaking. It was a picture—the young man in blue; a girl whose lover's life hung in the balance, watching intently to catch a word of hope from the enemy. Finally Coleman rose:

"Sit here," he said, "and write your request, re-enforced with your argument, and I will send it with my report to the general."

With the light of a newborn hope in her eye Dolly obeyed. What she wrote was not expressed as the captain's report—indeed, it formed a marked contrast with that report—but there was plenty of reason for the request, and Dolly's heart was in her argument. It needed nothing to send it to the heart of the man it was intended for, inasmuch as it was that of a young girl asking for her lover's life.

When she had finished it she arose and handed it to the captain, who, without reading it, placed it in an envelope and, taking it outside, gave it to one of his men, with orders to take it to the general and bring an answer.

It was fifteen miles to camp, and the greater part of the day must be consumed before a reply could be received. Captain Coleman could form no opinion of what the answer would be, except that it would be either an order to shoot every man he had captured at once or that the boon was granted. He knew that the general was a kind hearted man, but he did not know whether he would consider himself at liberty to spare what the law of war condemned or if he saw justice in Dolly Peyton's request.

MOTHERS WHO HAVE DAUGHTERS

Find Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winchester, Ind. — "Four doctors told me that they could never make me regular, and that I would eventually have dropsy. I would bloat, and suffer from bearing-down pains, cramps and chills, and I could not sleep nights. My mother wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking one and one-half bottles of the Compound, I am all right again, and I recommend it to every suffering woman." — MRS. MAY DEAL, Winchester, Ind.

Hundreds of such letters from girls and mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them have been received by The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by its use.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

PIRATES OF HONGKONG.

They Are the Real Old Fashioned Bloodthirsty Kind.

There are pirates in Hongkong—not the usual kind that greet the gentle stranger with an expansive smile and take what he has for worthless rubbish, nor yet the petty thieves that go by that name on our own water fronts, but the real old fashioned, murderous kind, who count not the victims as they reckon the spoils.

Of course they do not swagger in costume, as all real pirates should, or ply their trade in Hongkong's immediate waters, but among the thousands of fishermen, stevedores and coal handlers that crowd the harbor's edge they mingle and gossip water front news, knowing well when a particularly rich cargo is due from the interior.

And in the purple twilight a junk darts out of one of the many estuaries far up the West or Pearl river and swoops with the suddenness of a hawk on the heavily laden prize. The struggle is short. Over the hills on the naked backs of a swarming crew the loot disappears forever from a smoking hulk in the rice swamps, or, as happened in the case of the Sainam, half a hundred take passage in the crowded hold of a river steamer and when the handful of unsuspecting whites gather at dinner raise a heathenish yell on the startled air, and the ship is taken.

Rifles thrust through bolted doors subdue the pitiful fire that lasts a lit-

THE FIRST WINDMILLS.

Could Work Only When the Wind Blew From a Certain Point.

Windmills are said to have been introduced into England by the Knights of St. John, who observed them in use among the Saracens in the Crusades, but how long they had been in existence before this it is not possible to ascertain. A water mill was built in Bohemia in the year 718, for an old chronicler mentions it, going on to say that "before that time all the mills in Bohemia were windmills set upon the summit of hills."

For hundreds of years windmills were among the most important adjuncts of industry, yet they hardly changed from the rude and primitive design of earliest days. They were fixed in one position, and so could only be worked when the wind blew from a certain quarter, while the four sails boasted no slats or checking apparatus of any kind, which must have been most inconvenient at times.

The first idea of arranging a mill so that it could be worked "where'er the wind did blow" was that of tethering an ordinary mill in the middle of a pond by means of ropes. When the wind shifted the ropes were loosed and the mill dragged around until the sails were caught by the wind, and it was then again tethered as before.

Later on a great pole, which was worked on the principle of a turntable, was affixed to the mill. Not until 1500 did Holland, the land of windmills, introduce a movable dome carrying the sail axle. The dome ran on rollers and was shifted around by means of the pole mentioned above. These ancient mills were often of massive build, being made of brick or stone, and later entirely of wood.—London Globe.

The Helmet That Fell.

Roque-laure, the deformed jester of Louis XIV., contrived to get out of many a scrape by his ready wit. One day he went to the king to ask his pardon for having struck off the helmet of one of his sentinels who had failed to give him the military salute. Louis, who knew his man, wondered that Roque-laure should crave his pardon for so venial an offense and said to him, "This is a serious matter, Roque-laure, but I will pardon you this time."

It afterward turned out that the soldier's head, was in the helmet and fell with it to the ground.—Argonaut.

The Astonishing Part.

Lord Townshend at the battle of Dettingen was standing quite near a drummer boy whose brains were dashed out by a cannon ball. His lordship gazed on the horrible spectacle for some moments in silence.

At last an old officer spoke up and said: "Why is your lordship surprised? Such things must happen in war."

"I know it," was the reply, "but what astonishes me is that a boy with so much brains should be here at all."

A Bright Outlook.

"Do you—er—do you think, Miss Dobleigh, that you will be—er—engaged next Thursday evening?" asked Tompy very bashfully.

"Well, really, Mr. Tompy," replied Ethel, "I don't know, but if you can get up spunk enough between now and then to do your share I think there's a fair prospect that I shall be."

And Tompy did.—Harper's Weekly.

THE BEST MAN.

It Was a Thrilling Episode That Enabled Polly to Decide.

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

I shall never forget that summer, the most important season of my life. David was then twenty-five, tall and straight as an arrow, cool of disposition, never flustered, while I was not only full of whims, but impulsive and never certain of doing the right thing at the right time.

I had known him since I was a little girl and had always looked up to him as something too far above such a chit as I. Cyril Marston I did not meet till that eventful summer, but as soon as he saw me it was plain that I had made an impression.

My uncle—my dear uncle who loved me as his own child—was with me, or, rather, I was under his care, and I knew he was watching me, knowing that I had two strings to my bow. I tried to get out of him which was his choice, but he would not tell me. I have since known that he preferred to leave it to me to choose instinctively the better man.

My uncle bade me goodbye as I stood on the steps of the summer hotel. "Have a good time, Polly," he said at parting, "and may the best man win."

I laughed, but my face flushed hotly, and when uncle had gone I sat there upon the veranda thinking things over. You see, David had been asking me to marry him both in and out of season for a long time, but why hurry to decide so important a question, for David would always be waiting patient and faithful, immovable as the sphinx.

So through this one long summer vacation at least I determined to think no more of the vexing question of marrying or giving in marriage, and then Cyril Marsden appeared on the scene.

It was very gratifying. I must admit, to be the one chosen above all others by a man so greatly admired, and we were soon jolly good compan-

THE FORMULA "FRUIT"

Is On The Outside Of For All The

Every user of "Fruit-a-tives" knows the formula of this famous fruit medicine is printed in a box. We have stated many times—and now it is made of the juices of apples, oranges, figs and nerve tonics and antiseptics.

Everyone knows that fruit juice is healthful and why this is true.

Fruit juice consists of about 91% water, 8% bitter substance. It is the quantity of bitter fruit value as a medicine. An eminent physician experimenting, found a method of increasing thus increasing the medicinal or curative quality.

The juices are first extracted from fresh prunes. By a secret process, some of the sweet principle. Then tonics and antiseptics are added, now known far and wide as "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world that is one of the few remedies that have been introduced to the public.

"Fruit-a-tives" is nature's stimulant for the treatment of obstinate Constipation, Liver Rheumatism, Headaches and Impure Blood, to which everything else fails.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold everywhere at 50c. or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by sic, I became conscious of an air of subdued excitement. The little waitresses hurried about with white and frightened faces, men talked quietly together then hastened from the room.

"What is it?" I asked of Cyril, and he went to see.

Presently he beckoned me from the doorway. "Something is wrong," he said nervously. "We had better get out."

But as we made our way to the elevators we found them already surrounded by a crowd pushing and struggling recklessly to get nearer the iron doors, clerks hurried down the narrow stairway, disorder and confusion prevailed.

Then I saw David's tall figure. He had been speaking to one of the managers. Now his voice rang out clearly, convincingly:

"There is no cause to be alarmed," he said. "A slight fire in the front part of the building will soon be under control. The one great danger to be averted at this time is a panic. The elevators can easily carry every one here to safety in a short time; coolness and obedience are all that is required."

He went about quickly, and with the aid of men who followed his directions long lines were formed reaching to the doors of the elevators, which worked swiftly as the orderly rows of people moved slowly forward or patiently awaited their turn.

There was no sound within now save David's voice encouraging, reassuring. Cyril clutched my arm frantically. "We will be next," he exclaimed. "Make a rush for it."

Then David approached: "Polly," he said very gently. "I am glad that you are near the door."

"Just two more," called the elevator man as Cyril hurried me forward. We a hundred take passage in the crowded hold of a river steamer and when the handful of unsuspecting whites gather at dinner raise a heathenish yell on the startled air, and the ship is taken. Rifles thrust through bolted doors subdue the pitiful fire that lasts a little while from behind the shot torn tablecloth, but the ship is already headed for the bank by the quartermaster with a rifle at his ear, and one more tragedy is added to the long list of crimes on the Sikiang.—W. THEN I SAW DAVID'S TALL FIGURE.

tions, he and I, always enjoying together the little excursions and fetes which the guests had planned.

This beautiful green country nestling close to the hills with its great blue lake sparkling in the sunshine or silvering in the moonlight was to me a new and enchanted land, while the dull and crowded city, so lately left behind, seemed but a memory, and David with his grave and kindly face had grown to be—a part of the memory.

"May the best man win," my uncle had said. "The best man," I repeated wonderingly, then, looking up, saw David himself standing before me.

"You!" I exclaimed, and my tone expressed only consternation, for Cyril was to take me in his motorboat that very afternoon to a yacht race—why, I was wearing the launch club colors in honor of the occasion—and it seemed rather inconsiderate of David to thus appear without one line of announcement.

"Yes," he answered quietly, "it is I. You do not seem pleased to see me, Polly?"

"If I had known that you were coming," I answered flippantly, "I would have met you with a brass band. As it is"—

David's face grew very stern. "Yes," he said questioningly, "as it is?"

"I have made another engagement for this afternoon," I finished.

David studied me reprovingly: "Then, Polly," he said slowly, "I will not stay to interrupt your plans."

His glance followed mine down the roadway, where Cyril Marsden came swinging along looking very handsome in his yachting flannels.

David barely acknowledged the introduction as I presented the two men, but Cyril was charming and gracious as ever, and thoughtfully invited David to accompany us on our pleasure trip—an invitation which was curtly refused.

"Goodby, Polly," David said in a low voice, "I think that I understand everything now."

That summer upon the lake shore was one round of gayety, but I did not see or hear from David again.

It was after we had returned to the city that Cyril disappointed my summer time friends by proving that upon his part at least ours had not been an idle flirtation, for he asked that world old question, and, listening, I thrilled at the beauty of his language.

He had driven me about in his electric as I shopped one glorious morning, and we stopped to dine at a restaurant on the ninth floor of a great department store building.

It was when we had settled ourselves in a secluded corner that my roving eyes fell upon David. He had evidently finished his meal and was leaning back wearily.

How white and thin he looked. Working steadily all summer without rest or recreation had been too hard on him.

The pianist began to play something weird and sad, and the violin joined in sobbingly. I looked down upon my corsage bouquet of white violets tied with silken cord, and resentment rose within me at the thought that with all his unceasing labor David could not hope to buy the violets which Cyril bestowed so lavishly.

Then above the hum of conversation, even above the crash of the mu-

David's voice encouraging, reassuring. Cyril clutched my arm frantically. "We will be next," he exclaimed. "Make a rush for it."

Then David approached: "Polly," he said very gently, "I am glad that you are near the door."

"Just two more," called the elevator man as Cyril hurried me forward. We had entered the car, when I saw a woman look up at Cyril beseechingly and then step back in sudden disappointment. She had a little child in her arms.

Then it all happened very quickly—the woman had my place in the elevator, the iron door clanged shut, and I stood coughing a little with the smoke and smiling up at David.

"Oh, Polly," he said sternly, "why did you do that?"

And I slipped my hand through his arm and answered honestly, "I did it, David, because I could not bear to be outside while you were here, and I am going to stay with you to the last."

I have read in stories of faces being illuminated, and I understood the full meaning of the word as I looked at David now.

He did not speak, but held me close to his side as our life saver came flying up again. The people were growing unruly now and pressed forward roughly.

Suddenly David lifted me in his arms, the iron doors closed again, and this time I was going down, down with the fortunate ones to safety.

As we came out into the fresh air and were led to a place beyond the Death After a Scratch.

Morris Quatzam, an eleven-year-old Windsor boy, fell off his bicycle and scratched his wrist. He thought nothing of the injury, but blood poison set in and he is dead.

Such incidents as these—by no means infrequent—ought to make people realize the danger that may lie even in the smallest flesh wound.

Take a simple illustration. When a knife, a rusty needle, a splinter of dirty wood, a barbed wire fence, or a thorn, scratches the hand, latter is inoculated with germs, of which the air about us is full. Directly these germs are introduced through the breach in the skin, a battle royal ensues between them, and certain organisms in our blood.

The way to avoid serious results is to cleanse the wound and apply Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is a powerful, yet painless germ-killer, and when applied to the broken skin is absorbed into the tissue, instantly destroying the germs that spread disease and inflammation.

As soon as applied to a sore or a cut Zam-Buk stops the pain and smarting. That is why it is so popular with children.

The flesh thus soothed and purified, the wound is made perfectly healthy, and all poison and cause of festering removed. Having done this, Zam-Buk then proceeds to heal the wound or sore, and new healthy tissue is built up in a quick, painless and perfect manner.

Zam-Buk must not be confused with ordinary ointments. Zam-Buk is a unique preparation, possessing antiseptic, soothing and healing qualities that are not to be found together in any other preparation. It is not only a unique healing balm, but it is also a skin food. For all skin diseases and injuries—cuts, bruises, burns, eczema, chafing, ulcers, ringworm, etc., it is without equal. It is also used widely for piles, for which it may be regarded as a specific. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto for price. Harmful imitations should be always refused.

protecting rope a cheer went up from the crowd, and I raised my smoke smarting eyes to the windows of the ninth story, where little tongues of flame leaped and curled.

Sick with fear I waited, knowing that David would be the last person to leave the burning floor. From time to time faint cheers sounded as the elevators unloaded their precious burdens, then with a wild and glaring light the flames burst forth unrestrained. Tremblingly I covered my face, but soon a mighty resounding cheer seemed to shake the earth. "All out safely," called a triumphant voice, and the people all about were telling excitedly of the presence of mind and the bravery of the man who prevented a panic.

"Who is he?" asked a young man who stood near with notebook and pencil in hand.

And I heard myself answering him proudly, almost unconsciously, "He is David Gray." I said, "the man I am going to marry." Then I turned to find David's eyes looking into mine.

"Come, Polly," he said softly and hastily drew me away. As we walked down a quiet side street I looked up into his dear grimy face with its tired lines.

"David," I asked reproachfully, "why did you not let me stay with you up there until the last?"

"Because, Polly," he answered, with a happy, boyish laugh, "I wanted you to stay with me down here until the last."

And that is how we became engaged.

Cedron Seed Plant.

In Central America many natives are gathering the seeds of this plant, Cedron Seed, a rare medicine that has valuable curative powers. But few drug stores carry this seed, owing to the high cost of the article.

This country is a large consumer of this costly seed because it enters into the famous catarrh remedy, Peruna, sold the world over.

QUEER WEDDING GIFTS.

One Couple of Mature Years Received a Pair of Coffins.

An Englishman extremely fond of hunting received as a wedding gift from an anonymous person a complete set of false limbs a set of artificial teeth and a couple of glass eyes, to procure all of which the sarcastic donor must, of course, have put himself to considerable expense. Accompanying these strange presents was a note wherein the hope was expressed that, by reason of the recipient's many falls while following the hounds, some or all of these substitutes might ultimately prove of use. As the bridegroom had incurred much enmity while holding office under his government, it was supposed that these gifts came from a disappointed office seeker.

A well known American writer received from a rival man of letters a scrap book wherein were carefully pasted and indexed many hundreds of clippings containing adverse criticisms touching the former's work, and a popular artist was presented with a set of elementary works upon self instruction in drawing and painting.

Some years ago in the west an elderly, crusty merchant on espousing a spinster of mature age was presented by an undertaker with two coffins for himself and wife, a letter which accompanied these ghastly gifts stating that they would, unlike most of the other offerings received, be sure to be of service. Naturally enough the bridegroom resented this singular if useful gift, and it took all the efforts of mutual friends to prevent a breach of the peace.

Like vexation was no doubt felt by an infirm octogenarian in Ohio who wedded a pleasure loving woman more than fifty years his junior. The present in this case was a large brass cage, "intended," so the inevitable accompanying letter stated, "to restrain the wayward flights of a giddy young wife who has married a decrepit old fool for his money."—Chicago Record-Herald.

LONDON THEATERS.

They Charge From a Penny to Sixpence For a Bill of the Play.

At the London theaters where the young woman shows you to a seat she asks if you wish a program. If you do you pay sixpence in the orchestra or dress circle for a program handsomely printed on fine paper. The price ranges down through "thrillpence" and "tuppence" as the galleries ascend to a penny in the cockpit. The quality of paper and the general artistic merit of the program decline with the price, but exactly the same information is conveyed for a penny as for sixpence. The fastidious theatergoer might prefer to pay a dime for a neat and simple program rather than to have a bulky bunch of advertisements gratis, as in New York, but these London programs, although not so thick as those of New York, are not devoid of advertisements. This gives the purchaser the feeling that he is being worked at both ends. A lady reminds me, however, that a program in a New York theater costs her 10 cents, as the smelly printing rubs off on her white gloves, the cleaning of which costs a dime.

The quality of the performance at the better London theaters certainly averages no higher than that at similar theaters in New York. The music halls are the resort of the great middle class. These are great auditoriums with tier on tier of galleries, the seating capacity ranging perhaps from 3,000 to 5,000.—London Letter in New York Sun.

The Roman Tribune.

The tribunes in ancient Rome represented the people in much the same way that the house of commons does in England and the house of representatives in this country. For a long time the patricians or aristocrats of Rome had everything their own way. But when the plebeians (or, as we would say, the "plain people") got their tribune the reckless tyranny of the patricians ceased. The tribune had great power. He could veto almost any act and nullify almost any law passed by the Romans. Liberty among the Romans dates from the time they first secured their tribunes.—New York American.

Friendship's Tribute.

Gladys—Did you see what the society column of the Daily Bread said about Nin Gillard the other morning? "She moves with ease and grace in our most exclusive circles." Maybelle—Yes, I read it. It's dead certain that the editor who wrote that had never seen her on roller skates.—Chicago Tribune.

Against His Convictions.

"Have some of this Welsh rabbit, Bjonsou?" asked Bjones as he stirred the golden concoction in the chafing dish.

"No, thanks, Bjonesey," returned Bjonsou, patting his stomach tenderly. "I am unalterably opposed to all corporation taxes."—Harper's Weekly.

"I met your husband in town. He was very much elated!"

Asiatic Parisian Scheme For Booming a "New Master."

For the booming of a new artist an astute dealer is necessary. He catches his artist as young as possible, preferably as an exhibitor of crazy canvases at the autumn salon of the independent exhibition, and commissions him to paint 100 pictures a year.

One by one, occasionally in twos and threes, at judicious intervals the dealer sends the pictures to the Hotel Drouot for sale by public auction. There he has confederates, who raise the price at each sale, and he buys them in himself.

After a few months the young artist's canvases have a certain market value, and the next step is taken to turn their painter into a modern master. The critics are attacked. One of them is asked to look at some daub, and when he cries out with horror the dealer says:

"What? You don't like it? Take it home with you as a favor to me, live with it six months and then!"

In due course an art amateur calls upon the critic and cannot contain his admiration for the new artist's picture.

"What a masterpiece! The most modern thing in art I have seen for a long time!" he exclaims.

Doubt begins to invade the critic's mind, and when one or two more enthusiastic amateurs have visited him he is worked up to writing a column of panegyric on the new master. The amateurs are, of course, sent by the dealer.

One or two articles and the boom is in full swing. Wealthy and simple minded collectors, remembering how other painters have been decried in their early days and how their works later have commanded fancy prices, rush in.

The new master makes about 10 per cent of the profit and the dealer the other 90 per cent. The new master is at the mercy of the dealer. If he grumbles the dealer floods the auction rooms with a hundred or so of his masterpieces and orders his agents not to bid, the result being that the canvases sell at rubbish prices, and the boom is burst.—Gil Blas.

DOMINION'S FIELD CROPS

Bulletin Issued by the Census and Statistics Office at Ottawa.

A despatch from Ottawa says: A bulletin of the census and statistics office, issued the other day, says that during August the situation with regard to the field crops of the Dominion showed great improvement over July. In the older Provinces the grains have matured well, and have been harvested and saved in fine condition. The estimate for the Dominion for wheat, oats and barley is 445,420,000 bushels, which is 129,185,000 bushels less than the final estimate for last year.

Spring wheat is less by 45,608,000 bushels; oats by 70,219,000 bushels, and barley by 16,010,000 bushels; but fall wheat shows an increase of 1,049,000 bushels.

In the eastern Provinces the increase of wheat is 3,633,000 bushels; of oats, 23,219,000 bushels, and of barley 625,000 bushels.

The loss in the western Provinces, exclusive of British Columbia, is a result of the great drouth of July, which reduced the area harvested by 22 per cent. for wheat, by 24 per cent. for oats, and by 31.5 per cent. for barley.

The estimated production of wheat for the whole of Canada is 122,785,000 bushels, of oats 293,247,000 bushels, and of barley 39,398,000 bushels as compared with 168,744,000 bushels wheat, 353,466,000 bushels oats, and 55,398,000 bushels barley in the final estimate for last year.

The estimate for Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta is 99,890,000 bushels wheat, 92,201,000 bushels oats, and 14,723,000 bushels barley, being an average of 11.89 bushels per acre for wheat, of 20.96 bushels for oats, and 14.49 bushels for barley on the area sown, but of 15.24 bushels wheat, 27.91 bushels oats, and 21.22 bushels barley per acre on the area reaped.

Compared with the same period last year for the Dominion the average condition of spring wheat on August 31 was 79.05 to 84.30, of oats 80.03 to 84.89, and of barley 80.51 to 83.54; but compared with the condition at the end of July it was 79.05 to 77.05 for spring wheat; 80.03 to 79.57 for oats, and 80.51 to 79.62 for barley. Peas, beans, buckwheat, mixed grain, flax corn for fodder, potatoes and alfalfa have declined in condition, but peas, mixed grains and flax only appreciably, while corn for husking, turnips, mangolds, carrots, sugar beets and pasture have improved.

THE HORRORS OF STOMACH TORTURE

INDIGESTION OF A LIFETIME PROMPTLY CURED BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES."

Mrs. J. R. Flock, of London, Ont., for years received the best medical attention that Canada afforded.

Her husband was a prominent physician, yet his skill and that of his colleagues, was of no avail in helping Mrs. Flock.

She writes, "I was a constant martyr to Stomach Weakness all my life and no physician could cure me, but 'Fruit-a-tives' gave me entire relief and I cordially recommend this famous fruit medicine to the public."

"Fruit-a-tives" corrects all disorders of digestion, and is a positive and speedy cure for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c, or may be obtained from Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

FATHER AND SON DROWN.

Boat Upset Near Montmorency Falls, Quebec.

A despatch from Quebec says: A double drowning accident occurred about 5 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon on the river opposite the village of Montmorency Falls. A well-known citizen of the locality named Paul Leclerc was in a canoe with his two sons, R. and A. Leclerc, and a friend named Nap Mercier, when suddenly the boat capsized, due to the imprudence of one of the party. Paul Leclerc and one of his sons, R. Leclerc, 35 years old, were drowned. The two others were saved. The body of Paul Leclerc was found a few minutes after the accident. He was 65 years old.

PRISONERS LIKE WORK.

Good Progress Made on New Roads in the North.

A despatch from Toronto says: So successful has been the experiment of putting prisoners to work on making new roads in Northern Ontario that many of the prisoners upon their discharge remain with the road gangs and draw pay for their work. A report has been received by Mr. R. P. Fairbairn, Deputy Minister of Public Works, stating that six miles of the road from Matheson to Nighthawk have been finished. There are 55 prisoners at work on this section and 22 free men. Five of the prisoners who were discharged remained with the gang. Forty-four men are at work on the road from Hill's Landing, on the Porcupine River, to Porcupine, a distance of seven miles.

PERISHED IN BUSH FIRES.

Five Deaths Reported From Hazlemere District.

A despatch from Vancouver says: From Hazlemere comes the report of the death of the wife and three members of the family of Wm. Morrison, a rancher, near Hazlemere.

BUILDING COLLAPSED.

Fifty Employees at Winnipeg Just Get Out in Time.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Two minutes after the fifty employees of the Manitoba Clothing Co. had hurriedly left the workrooms, warned by falling plaster, the rear part of the building collapsed on Friday morning through the foundations giving way. Excavation being taken out for a big hotel next door weakened the foundations, causing the collapse, which entails a loss of between fifty and one hundred thousand dollars to the building and clothing stock. Max Goldstein, proprietor of the store, left his office directly under the part of the building which fell in only a minute before the accident.

TIMBER LANDS FIRE SWEEPED.

Rain Quenches Conflagration in Nova Scotia.

A despatch from Amherst, N. S., says: A destructive forest fire that has been raging in the central part of the province for some days has been brought under control by the timely rains. The fire broke out on Saturday in the Chapman settlement of Cumberland County and swept over a thousand acres of valuable timber property. Over one hundred fire-fighters were out in force on Wednesday. The rain on Wednesday night continued long enough to prevent further damage.

A POINT FOR CRIPPEN.

Evidence of Prof. Pepper at the Great Murder Trial.

A despatch from London says: Testifying at the resumption on Wednesday of the Crippen murder trial, Prof. Augustus J. Pepper, the pathologist of the University of London, said that his examination had convinced him that the human parts found in the cellar of the Hilldrop Crescent home were severed by a hand skilled in surgery and directed by a mind that possessed a real knowledge of anatomy. Under cross-examination Professor Pepper admitted that he had been unable to establish the sex of the victim. At this point Solicitor Newton took the witness in hand and asked him to be more specific in his statements as to having found "no trace of sex." The professor agreed with counsel that it was impossible for him in any manner to determine the sex from the parts of the body found and examined by him. The witness explained that he meant that he could not identify the sex anatomically.

SHOT HIS RIVAL DEAD.

Tragedy on the Banks of the Salmon River, B. C.

A despatch from Vancouver says: Infuriated because a rival trapper had a legal warrant to search his shack for beaver skins, Donald McDonald shot Frank Savage, a special constable, dead on the banks of Salmon River on Wednesday. He then went to Rock Bay with the one man who witnessed the deed and surrendered himself to justice. He was brought to Vancouver on Sunday morning on the steamer Cowichan. McDonald has been a trapper for many years.

AN ARMY OF CROOKS.

They are Invading the Country Districts of Quebec.

A despatch from Montreal says: The town of St. John's has been thrown into a state of excitement by information which has reached Chief of Police Lasmar and the municipal authorities that a band of burglars, bank-robbers and safe-crackers are on their way there from New York. Mayor Gervais applied to Major Nelles, commanding the Royal Dragoons, for assistance. The managers of the local banks were warned, and a number of detectives met the trains from the south. St. John's is the first Canadian town of importance after the trains cross the border.

Mr. W. R. Brock, Director of the Geological Survey, reports that the season of navigation of Hudson Bay can be extended by the use of proper aids to navigation.

Donald shot Frank Savage, a special constable, dead on the banks of Salmon River on Wednesday. He then went to Rock Bay with the one man who witnessed the deed and surrendered himself to justice. He was brought to Vancouver on Sunday morning on the steamer Cowichan. McDonald has been a trapper for many years. He came originally from Argylshire.

YIELD IS EXCELLENT.

Brandon Experimental Farm Crops are Good.

A despatch from Brandon, Man., says: Thrashing operations at the Experimental Farm show a yield much better than had been expected. The yield of the different varieties of wheat per acre is as follows: Red Fyfe, 25 bushels; white, 34 bushels; Preston, 32 bushels; early red Fyfe, 27 bushels. The vegetable crops at the Experimental Farm are very fine, much better than had been expected considering the dry season.

CONSUMPTION OF CIGARETTES

Over 100,000,000 More Smoked During Last Year Than During Year Previous.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The customs and excise returns for the last fiscal year give one indication of the inflowing tide of prosperity which will not be greeted with general enthusiasm. The production of cigarettes for consumption in Canada for the fiscal year ending March last totalled no less than 469,711,099, an increase of a little over a hundred million cigarettes as compared with the preceding year, and representing an outlay of probably over four million dollars for "coffin nails," principally by the boys and young men of Canada during the twelve months. During the preceding year, on the other hand, owing to the reduced consumption which followed the commercial depression of two years ago, there was a considerable falling off in the importation and manufacture of cigarettes, the total being only 368,295.

796, as compared with 398,307,344 in 1907-8. The increase of over a hundred millions in the production of cigarettes during the last fiscal year is the largest on record, and points to a rather alarming concomitant of good times. It may be noted also that this increase is despite the anti-cigarette legislation of Dominion Parliament two sessions ago.

Comparative figures for the last three years are as follows:—

1907-8—Domestic cigarettes manufactured, 381,809,344; entered through customs, 13,598,090; total, 395,407,434.

1908-9—Domestic cigarettes manufactured, 356,756,130; entered through customs, 11,539,666; total 368,295,796.

1909-10—Domestic cigarettes manufactured, 457,095,128; entered through customs, 12,616,233; total 469,711,361.

TWO MEN INSTANTLY KILLED

J. W. Lloyd, of Stratford, and J. Morwood, of Welland, Struck by Express.

A despatch from St. Catharines says: James Morwood, a retired merchant of Welland, and James Lloyd, a resident of Stratford, while walking across the Grand Trunk high bridge near Jordan Station, on Wednesday afternoon, met an instant death. By crossing the bridge, a walk of several miles is saved on the way to Vineland and the two men were making the journey when they were struck by the Chicago express as they stepped from the east-bound track to escape an approaching freight train. The bodies were hurled against the freight cars of the passing train and saved from a fall of over 100 feet, but they were badly mangled. Mr. Morwood sold out his boot and shoe business in Welland only a short time ago and was on his way to pay a visit to Mrs. Fry, his sister-in-law, near Vineland. He had been in business for over a quarter of a century and was a very prominent man, having spent his life of 65 years there. He is survived by his second wife and his only son, Harry, who is a member of the law firm of German and Morwood, Welland.

PLOT TO MURDER EMPEROR.

Formidable Bomb was Discovered on Railway Track.

A despatch from Fuenfkichen, Hungary, says: A formidable bomb was discovered on Thursday lying on the railroad track in front of Emperor William's train, in which he was proceeding to a hunting lodge at Mohaies, 25 miles southwest of Fuenfkichen.

CANADA IN THE LEAD.

In Packing and Transporting Meat and Dairy Produce.

A despatch from London says: A member of the Special Danish Commission which lately visited Canada to study the system of packing, collecting and transporting meat and dairy produce, says the methods employed in the United States cannot compare for cleanliness and despatch with those in everyday practice in Canada.

PERISHED IN BUSH FIRES.

Five Deaths Reported From Hazelmere District.

A despatch from Vancouver says: From Hazelmere comes the report of the death of the wife and three members of the family of Wm. Morrison, a rancher, near Hazelmere, in fierce bush fires. While Morrison was in another part of the district aiding the fire-fighters his wife and children perished in attempting to fight their way through the cordon of flames. Another report has reached Deputy Fire Warden Gordon of two deaths between Hazelmere and Mud Bay. The fire covers an area twelve miles long by five wide. Several houses and much stock have been destroyed. Over one hundred men are fighting for their homes, and many more are needed.

DIRIGIBLE DESTROYED.

Zeppelin's Latest Airship Meets With Disaster.

A despatch from Baden-Baden says: If anything could discourage that intrepid apostle of aeronautics, Count Zeppelin, it would appear to have been furnished on Wednesday, when the Zeppelin VI., the latest model of his aerial invention, was torn by the explosion of one of the three motors located in the stern gondola. Three of the airship's crew were seriously injured. The dirigible was constructed to carry ten passengers, and during the last few days had made trips to various interesting places. Baron Rudolf Goldschmidt-Rothschild had chartered the airship for the use of a private party next Friday.

MORE HELP WANTED.

Saskatchewan Still Crying for Harvest Hands.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Owing to the insistent demands from Saskatchewan for more help in the harvest fields, the C. P. R. has been asked to run another series of harvesters' excursions from Toronto as early as possible. Advice from Regina state that over 1,000 men are needed for thrashing gangs that are now at a practical standstill for the lack of help.

CONSTABLE WAS SHOT.

Four Bullets Fired from Ambuscade in Chatham, N. B.

A despatch from St. John N. B., says: While Walter Coughlan, police officer, in Chatham, was patrolling the streets on Wednesday night a bullet, fired from an alley, struck him in the leg. Three other shots followed. One bullet passed through his coat near the shoulder and the third grazed his neck. No trace was found of his assailant.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The Last Day of October Has Been Chosen by Government.

A despatch from Ottawa says: At a meeting of the Cabinet Ministers on Thursday afternoon an order was passed making Monday, October 31st, Thanksgiving Day this year. A-BOX OF CANDY.

"Do you know what sugar is?" asked Uncle Jim, as he handed his small nieces a box of creamy-white bonbons. Both Mary and Constance laughed at his question, and Mary said, "Of course we do, Uncle Jim. Sugar is sweet."

"So is molasses, and so is honey," said Uncle Jim, smilingly.

This made Mary feel a little puzzled. She knew that candy was made of sugar, and she knew that there was a delicious maple-sugar made by boiling down the sap from maple-trees, but she had never thought about the sweet, white grains of sugar which made her oatmeal taste so good; and she looked at Constance wondering. But Constance shook her head.

"Sugar is made from beets. From red beets, like those that grow in your father's garden," said Uncle Jim.

Mary and Constance both laughed a little, for they thought perhaps Uncle Jim was trying some sort of a joke on them; but he nodded soberly, and said, "Yes, indeed. Beets are planted all over the world, and great buildings erected to crush out their sweet juice and boil it down into clean, white sugar, so that small girls can have bowls of oatmeal and boxes of candy."

"Truly, Uncle Jim?" asked Mary.

"Truly!" replied her uncle. "And thousands of years ago a little girl in India saw her big brothers cut down the stalks of sugar-cane, and crush it between heavy rollers, and take the sweet juice and put it in a kettle and boil it down into sugar."

"And in China little girls helped to gather maize, a grain that grows in the fields, and when that was crushed there was a sweet liquid, and that, too, was boiled to make sweets for small people."

"Was the sugar in the sugar-bowl made of beets?" asked Constance.

"Yes," replied Uncle Jim, "and when you go West with Aunt Ethel you will see acres and acres of land all planted with beets, planted on purpose to be gathered and crushed into sweet juice and boiled down into sugar. You must get your father to tell you how much sugar is made in Cuba, and in South America, and in other countries."

GENERAL BOTHA DEFEATED

Sir P. Fitzpatrick Wins in Federal Election in South Africa.

A despatch from Johannesburg says: The standing of the parties in the Federal elections in South Africa, which took place on Thursday, was at midnight as follows:—

Nationalists	33
Unionists	26
Independents	6
Labor	1

Sir Percy Fitzpatrick defeated Premier Botha in East Pretoria and Sir G. Farrar defeated the Minister of Finance, Hon. H. J. Hu'.

Cape Town went solidly Unionist, Dr. Jameson beat the Nationalist candidate in Cape Town by 1,414 to 62.

Premier Botha, addressing a crowd at Pretoria after his defeat, said: "I shall do my utmost to stamp out racialism."

Snuts, Nationalist, carried Pretoria West.

The probable result of the final elections will be:—

Nationalists	64
Unionists	40
Natal Independents	12
Labor	4
Independent	1

HEALTH

THE SCHOOL AGE.

With every year that passes more and more thought is being given to the subject of the physical care of children. Attention is especially turning to that class of children whose parents are either too ignorant or too careless to pay proper regard to their bodily welfare and especially is the state growing to a sense of its duty in regard to the children in its schools.

The schools are no longer looked upon as "dumps," where children can be placed and kept without discrimination as to age, capacity or physical condition. Parents as well as pedagogists are growing more and more awakened to the absolute loss of time involved in sending little children to the public schools who have no right to be there. A sick child has no place among children who are normal, and all children below ten years of age are being treated with nothing short of cruelty when the full complement of hours is exacted from them.

There was never yet seen a normal child who was fitted to sit still indoors from nine o'clock until four, with a break of only one hour at noon. Such an arrangement means in the winter no daylight playtime of the number of hours in school demanded of children under ten years of age.—Youth's Companion.

WHEN TO EAT FRUIT.

To obtain the most benefit from the succulent fruits they should be eaten at the end of the chief meal. Bananas are an exception and may be eaten with any meal. They are very acceptable cut in thin slices and eaten with bread and butter. Stewed fruits often have their virtues wasted through being eaten at the wrong time. Six or eight stewed prunes half an hour before breakfast are beneficial; so are stewed figs or stewed apples eaten before breakfast.

Peeled oranges cut into thin slices so that the juice is set free, with castor sugar strewn over the slices, are not unlike pineapple and form a highly efficacious aid to digestion. Grapes should never be eaten except after the chief meal of the day. Taken when the stomach is comparatively empty, they are a specially harmful fruit.

DEATH AT A CROSSING.

One Man Killed and One Seriously Injured.

A despatch from Hitchcock Sask., says: H. Brown, an Englishman working on a farm near here, was instantly killed, and A. Savelberg, a farmer, probably fatally injured when the buggy in which they were driving was hit by a work train at a crossing. The view of the track was obstructed by a long snow fence, and the men probably never saw anything until the train was upon them.

NO ICE PALACE THIS TIME.

Montreal Will Have Winter Carnival of Sports.

A despatch from Montreal says: Montreal is to have a winter carnival this winter, but it will be a carnival in which all features which might hurt the reputation of Canada will be eliminated. Such was the decision arrived at by a number of prominent merchants and sportsmen who held a meeting to discuss the matter on Wednesday. There will be a week of winter sports of all kinds, but there will be no ice palace.

HAD PLANS OF DEFENCES.

Alleged German Spy is Now on Trial in England.

A despatch from London says: Lieutenant Helma, the alleged German spy, was arraigned on Thursday, charged with having committed a felony in obtaining information concerning the Portsmouth defences for the purpose of communicating the same to another State. Helma was arrested while engaged in sketching the fortifications. After evidence had been adduced that the prisoner had in his possession plans of the defences when he was arrested, the case was adjourned to September 29.

"Yes," replied Uncle Jim, "and when you go West with Aunt Ethel you will see acres and acres of land all planted with beets, planted on purpose to be gathered and crushed into sweet juice and boiled down into sugar. You must get your father to tell you how much sugar is made in Cuba, and in South America, and in other countries."

Mary picked out a round white peppermint from her box of candies, and looked at it wonderingly. She was thinking that the commonest things are interesting.

"I suppose that was a beet once," she said.

"And this was a tall stalk of sugar-cane that grew in Cuba," said Constance, laughingly, holding up a heart-shaped bonbon.

"Wait," he said, "until you go to the country some spring. Then you can boil down maple-sap and make maple-sugar."

"I think you remember better if you make things yourself," said Constance, hopefully, "but whenever I see beets now I shall think of sugar."

"And when I see sugar I shall think of sugar-cane," said Mary.

"And what will you think of when you see a box of candy?" asked Uncle Jim; and both the little girls answered in chorus:

"Of Uncle Jim! We shall think of you!"—Youth's Companion.

WILL BUILD BIG HOTEL.

Canadian Northern to Commence Work in Winnipeg.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: The Canadian Northern Railway will begin shortly to build the proposed hotel in Winnipeg to cost $2,000,000. President William Mackenzie, who arrived from the West on Thursday, intimated as much. The location for the building, Mr. Mackenzie stated, was the corner of Water and Main Streets, where the old Northern Pacific formerly stood. This is the natural site for the building, Mr. Mackenzie stated, and here it would be built. The property, of course, belongs to the company. With the building of the hotel, the structure at present used as a depot will be renovated.

ANSWERED THE BELL.

Old Fire Horse Recalled to Duty by the Fire Alarm.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The call of duty—namely, the fire alarm bell—on Tuesday brought "Bob," one of the Hull fire horses tearing back to his stall after a few hours of unlicensed liberty in the streets and suburbs of the city. The fire horse, without halter, got loose during the afternoon and took to his heels. He galloped madly around the streets for a considerable time, eluding all attempts to capture him. Finally the alarm was rung and "Bob" took the nearest way at full gallop for the fire station to report for duty.

The accident was one of the usual kind of unfired charges. Hodgins was foreman and Bathgate helper. The former was from Ontario and the latter came from Scotland.

short of cruelty when the full complement of hours is exacted from them.

There was never yet seen a normal child who was fitted to sit still indoors from nine o'clock until four, with a break of only one hour at noon. Such an arrangement means in the winter no daylight playtime at all. The child is kept at an unnatural tension when attention is demanded of him for hours at a stretch, and study is made odious to him, so that lessons become associated in his mind with all that is wearisome and to be avoided.

Many a poor little boy plays truant and takes his punishment again and again. He knows that retribution is inevitable, and yet he faces it because, although he could not express it, the alternative—that of spending the long day at the school desk—is intolerable. He is not a natural criminal, he is not a potential tramp, although he may become one under the system. He is simply a natural, healthy little boy, able to attend to his teacher up to a certain point, and then able no longer, do what he or his teacher will.

If truancy and backwardness and inattention result from some physical defect, such as imperfect eyes or deafness, the case is even more cruel, and natural mental development is a physical impossibility until the defects are remedied.

Much good work has already been done in the direction of physical examination of defective children, and much has also been done to remedy the partial or actual starvation which is the piteous state of so many children of the poorer classes; but much remains to be done, and especially in the matter

DARED WHIRLPOOL RAPIDS

Captain Larsen's Wild Voyage in a Frail Motor Boat.

A despatch from Niagara Falls, Ont., says: It was not five minutes after he had told a party of newspaper men that he would not make the trip that Capt. Klaus Larsen of Cleveland, Ohio, suddenly changed his mind on Sunday afternoon and successfully negotiated the five miles of water between the Maid of the Mist landing and a point a mile and a half above Lewiston.

Larsen kept in midstream until he neared the head of the rapids. Then he went in towards the Canadian shore. Most of the rocks in the rapids are near the American shore. As the Ferro struck the rapids, great waves tossed her clear of the water with as much ease as they would have buffeted about a huge cork. The little craft battled manfully with the seething, tossing waters, at times rearing up and taking a leap, after the manner of a racing auto on an ordinary country road, only more pronounced in her movements into the air. Ten feet leaps into space were taken so many times that Larsen was unable to enumerate them after the trip.

In passing the whirlpool, which was reached in less than three minutes, the Ferro went in towards the American shore, cutting across the eastern corner of the pool. She experienced no difficulty in getting past this treacherous piece of water, but had hardly negotiated the feat when the engine stopped. Three minutes after the engine stopped the Ferro struck a big wave that completely overturned the craft in just about the Devil's Pool. She righted herself with no difficulty. From now on Larsen was the plaything of the mighty river, unable to hold the course, the boat swinging from one side to another. After getting through the Devil's Hole, the Ferro swung toward the rocks on the American side of the river, about a mile and a half above Lewiston, rolled over one boulder and went fast between two others. There Larsen stayed for five minutes, forty feet from shore, working desperately to release the craft. Larsen finally liberated her by working the rudder from side to side, was hit by a comber and sent careering toward the middle.

At the bend, with the Lewiston bridge in sight, the boat drifted toward the American side again and was then caught in the shore eddy. The Ferro grounded again, this time near enough to shore to be caught by Roy Rockwell of this city, who waded into the water and caught a rope thrown by Larsen.

COLLEGE FOR MONKEYS

SOME EARN MORE THAN CABINET MINISTERS.

English Woman Who Civilizes Them and Makes Money Out of Them.

In these days of overcrowded occupations it takes a genius to devise an entirely new means of making a living. Mrs. Hamlyn, the wife of the well-known wild beast importer, St. George Street, London, has hit on a novel plan which promises to make her fortune, says London Tit-Bits.

The lucrative profession she has decided upon is that of being chief instructor to a well-established college for monkeys. Here the mischievous creatures from African jungles are trained to behave like civilized beings and act like real ladies and gentlemen.

THE PRIDE OF THE SCHOOL.

As the Tit-Bits man stepped warily into this quaint university the President, Mrs. Hamlyn, duly introduced him to Miss Marjorie, the pride of the school. While Marjorie made eyes at the admiring newspaper man, Mrs. Hamlyn said that the animal had only been brought from the docks a fortnight before, in almost a dying condition. Under humane treatment, however, it had already displayed unusual intelligence.

No fewer than seventeen chimpanzees have been reclaimed from a life of uselessness. Peter, one of her first students who recently appeared at the Palace Theatre, is now earning $1,500 a week in New York. Seven others are in receipt of salaries twice as large as that of the Prime Minister.

"I do not claim to be an animal trainer," said Mrs. Hamlyn; "what I do is to 'civilize' them. My aim is not to produce a monkey which will perform tricks, but to make the monkey behave like a well-brought-up child." This is her plan of campaign.

At half-past eight they are taken from their cots and, seated in tall chairs, have breakfast with all the members of the household. Breakfast consists of eggs and bacon, bread and butter, and cups of tea followed by a couple of bananas. Breakfast over, they are carefully washed, brushed and combed, after which they are dressed.

The males are dressed in male attire, while the ladies have a wardrobe consisting of vest, corsets, knickers, kilt, red jersey, and brown socks and shoes. At first, of course, they do not care to be dressed, but once they get used to the clothes, you have only to provide a number of different-colored garments and a mirror and—Well they are just like human beings!

KISSING GOOD NIGHT.

When the toilet is finished, the students play till dinner. Here they appear at the table again, and have some fish, a cut from the joint and vegetables, followed by milk pudding.

During the afternoon they have "forty winks" or play, just as they are disposed. Tea is served about five, consisting of bread and butter with meat paste, tea, and two more bananas. At half-past six they are

THREE GREAT MYSTERIES

GREAT CASES COME AGAIN BEFORE THE PUBLIC.

Tichborne Case Revived—Death of Archduke Johann—Dauphin of France.

Three cases of mystery, the accepted solutions of which never satisfied many persons, have been oddly revived at the same time. The famous Tichborne case, which occupied the public mind to an extraordinary degree in the early '70s, has just been recalled by the death of Sir Henry Tichborne; the disappearance of the Austrian Archduke Johann Salvator, otherwise known as "Johann Orth," has received a fresh interest from the application of his nephew, Archduke Joseph Ferdinand, for a confirmation of the death and permission to deal with the estate of his uncle, and the question of the lost Dauphin of France has been revived by the case of the brothers Naundorff or De Bourbon being brought before a commission of the French Senate.

It is a question if the present interest in these cases will lead to the production of any substantial proofs. It is believed that Emperor Francis Joseph has positive proofs of the fate of Archduke Johann Salvator, and it is said that in the archives of the Russian and German courts are all the records relating to the supposed death of the Dauphin.

One of the curious things about the Tichborne case, it has been said, was the readiness with which people who might have been expected to know better supported the claim of Arthur Orton, the impostor. He found believers of his story in some brother officers of Roger Tichborne in Guilford Onslow, who gave the claimant about $75,000 to "fight for his rights," and above all in the Dowager Lady Tichborne, who accepted him as a son.

THE TICHBORNE CASE

was famous not only on account of the attention that it attracted but also from the fact that it was the longest modern trial before an English court. The claimant was brought from Australia at the expense of Lady Tichborne, who had never believed that her son Roger had perished with the foundering of the sailing ship Belle on which he had taken passage at Valparaiso for England. On the 103rd day of the trial the claimant elected to be non-suited and was committed to jail and sentenced to fourteen years penal servitude.

He was a man of massive proportions and is said to have borne little resemblance to the real Roger Tichborne. His story while in some points convincing was as a whole pretty flimsy. He confessed in 1895, three years before his death, that he was the son of a butcher of Wapping and that his name in reality was Arthur Orton. Yet in spite of all this, said a London newspaper at the time of Sir Henry Tichborne's death, "even to this day one may come across those who still maintain that the Arthur Orton who died in poverty in Marylebone twelve years ago was the real Sir Roger."

American coast and that he lived for many years after the time of the reported sinking of the Santa Margherita. In cases of death under unusual circumstances there are invariably some people who are willing to believe stories of possible even if improbable, escapes.

FORTUNE IN A STAMP.

A Windfall That Came to a Poor Black Forest Family.

Generation after generation the family of Hofrau fought for a meagre living in the Black Forest of Germany. As far back as the family legend went the family had been poor and Paul Hofrau and his frau, the latest of the line excepting only their flock of small children, were no better off. If there are wolves in the Black Forest they howled often before the door of the small Hofrau home. The house was clean and neat as befits that of a German housekeeper, despite poverty.

One day—it was only a few years ago—Frau Hofrau took down the small box that contained the few poor relics of a long line of struggling ancestors. There was an envelope containing a lock of her dead mother's hair, and on the envelope although she paid no attention to it, was a stamp.

A knock on the door interrupted her reverie over the relics, and she laid the letter on the table and went to the door. A stranger, well dressed, stood at the threshold. He pleaded fatigue and the privilege of resting for a few minutes. The good dame willingly assented, and the man came in and sat down. The conversation drifted to the poverty of the Hofraus, a subject that was always before Mrs. Hofrau.

"Why," said the stranger, suddenly picking up the envelope containing the lock of hair, "you have a fortune right here."

Frau Hofrau was startled, fearing her caller had gone insane. But he explained. The stamp on the envelope was an old one and there were only five like it in the world. On the spot he offered her $1,000 for it, and still bewildered, she gave him the envelope, and would have given him the hair too, only the caller, an enthusiastic stamp collector, laughingly refused it. He wrote out a check and gave it to her. With this windfall the fortunes of the Hofrau family took a brace and now the Hofraus no longer fear the wolf's howling.

POSED AS RICH CANADIAN

YOUNG ADVENTURER SENT TO PENAL SERVITUDE.

Obtained Money Under False Pretences From Prominent People in London.

While John Howard Clark, aged thirty-one, a tall, thin-faced young man, neatly dressed in a grey suit, was placed in the dock at London Sessions, says The London Daily Mail, an extraordinary account of a series of frauds was given, among the victims being Mrs. Birrell, wife of the Chief Secretary for Ireland. Clark was charged with obtaining

During the afternoon they have "forty winks" or play, just as they are disposed. Tea is served about five, consisting of bread and butter with meat paste, tea, and two more bananas. At half-past six they are undressed, washed and brushed, and put to bed. They sleep in nightgowns, and, after affectionately kissing Mrs. Hamlyn good night, require no more attention till morning.

At the end of three to five months of this treatment the animals become quite civilized and act just like children.

The profits? Of course! Most of the animals are picked up at the docks for a mere song, but after a course of Mrs. Hamlyn's school they are almost worth their weight in gold. At any rate, the lowest she has taken has been $500, while in many cases they have fetched $750.

PROFESSOR STUDIES APE.

Lives in Cage to Get on Speaking Terms with Gorillas.

Prof. R. L. Garner, the man who went into the African jungle several years ago with the avowed intention of studying at close range the language and habits of the anthropoid apes, has just returned to New York, accompanied by a female chimpanzee said to possess remarkable powers, and which he has named "Susie." The professor says he understands the creature, which is able to distinguish colors and which can laugh like a child when amused.

Garner pursued his studies under the protecting wing of a specially constructed bamboo cage, which he placed in the French Congo near Lake Fernan Vaz. The steel cage which he took with him to Africa was lost when his canoe upset. Protected from the dangerous beasts by his cage and accompanied by a native cook and house-boy, Garner gradually got on intimate terms with twenty-two chimpanzees and nine gorillas. He says he has tabulated twelve or fourteen words used by the anthropoids, and believes he can understand nine of them.

Susie was taken by the professor to the University of Pennsylvania to be studied by the psychological experts there.

DO WOMEN SMOKE OPIUM?

Rather Conservative English Journal Declares it to be No.

According to a London paper not given to sensation mongering, the opium habit is spreading rapidly in London, especially among the smart women of society.

It always has been difficult to discover the facts regarding an evil of this kind, but the evidence appears to have been obtained from medical men and other sources which leaves no room for doubt that the use of the insidious drug is working widespread havoc and sending many victims to the prisons and inebriates' homes.

It is even alleged the habit is encouraged by a small group of west-end practitioners, who supply opium with full knowledge of the use to which it is being put. In most cases, however, it is obtained by cunning and misrepresentation.

DOG'S FIGHT WITH A LION.

How a Stray Fox Terrier Won an African Lion's Skin.

Simba, the pluckiest fox terrier in the world and the only dog of its breed which has ever tackled a full grown lion "singled handed," has returned to London, her birthplace, from British East Africa, says the London Daily Mail.

The story of how Simba fought the lion was told to a representative of this journal by Cherry Kearton, the dog's master, who has just returned from the Kenia district of British East Africa with a number of cinematograph pictures of wild animals.

Simba is an ordinary fox terrier, of no special value from a breeder's point of view. Simba's fight with the lion took place when Mr. Kearton was trying to obtain pictures of the killing of a lion by native spearmen. Two lions had been located in some scrubs, and twenty Massi warriors, with spears, were ready to attack. The lioness, however, escaped, and the male lion, after appearing for a moment, bolted into a dried river bed and refused to budge.

"Simba," said Mr. Kearton, "entered into the donga, and within a few seconds we heard a tremendous roar which seemed to shake the ground, and the bushes within twelve yards of us were violently agitated. The lion roared again and again, and in the brief intervals we heard the weak but very furious yapping of the dog. The Massi stood, every nerve tingling, with spears poised.

"Suddenly the lion dashed through a little clearing, and we were amazed to see Simba hanging on with her teeth embedded in its tail. Three spears were hurled at the escaping beast with such accuracy that they all transfixing the heart and the lion fell dead. You must know that the skin of the lion belongs, according to local custom, not to the warrior whose spear inflicts the fatal wound, but to the man who first rushes in and cuts off the black tin from the tail.

"Two of the three spearmen dashed into the dongas, but they found Simba with the black tin still between her teeth, resolutely determined to oppose any hostile claim. The spearmen, who were lost in admiration, agreed that the skin belonged by right of seizure to Simba, and they handed it over later to my wife as trustee for the dog."

reality was Arthur Orton. In spite of all this, said a London newspaper at the time of Sir Henry Tichborne's death, "even to this day one may come across those who still maintain that the Arthur Orton who died in poverty in Marylebone twelve years ago was the real Sir Roger."

JOHANN SALVATOR.

The application filed in the court at Vienna for the registration of the death of the Archduke Johann Salvator is evidently going to cause more trouble to the legal authorities than they had anticipated. The summons to "all persons having knowledge of the Archduke" to inform the court of the facts has brought forth many stories. Many of these are upon such a flimsy foundation that no attention will be paid to them, but there are others which will be thoroughly investigated.

The Archduke, it will be remembered, abandoned the Austrian court—some said because he had a distaste for the world and others because he did not secure political favors that he wished—fell in love with Milli Stubel, the premier danseuse, married her in London and then took her to sea on the steamer Santa Margherita and disappeared. According to the generally accepted story he was last seen when he set sail from Buenos Ayres for Valparaiso.

While it is evident that the Santa Margherita was lost it is asserted that "Johann Oorth" never sailed on her, or if he did that he was saved from the wreck. An engineer named Panauz has offered himself as a witness before the court saying that he saw Orth after the time of the alleged wreck and helped him to find an "estancia" in the disputed zone between Chile and Argentina and afterward visited him several times.

LEADS SOLITARY LIFE.

A second will be the Belgian explorer and scientist, M. G. Leconte, who commanded the Belgica in her expedition to the Antarctic in 1899. He says that he met on the slopes of the Andes a man leading a solitary life with his horses, dogs and books. The man was of distinguished bearing, spoke several languages with a German or Austrian accent and bore a striking resemblance to the pictures of the missing Archduke. When shown the recently published portraits of Johann Orth he pronounced them "incontestably those of the man with whom I spent several days in the winter of 1899." That would be nine years after the Santa Margherita was lost at sea.

Other persons living in South America claim also to have seen him and a French writer asserts that he spent several days as his guest on an Argentina farm. It is said that the late Dr. Helfert, the Austrian historian, was in communication with the missing man and the papers that he left will be carefully examined. Others who, it is said, heard from him regularly were Dr. von Harbeler, his attorney, and Baron von Abaco, who retired some years ago to German New Guinea.

These stories and many others of a similar nature will be brought before the Austrian court, but it seems quite safe to say that whatever may be the decision there will always be a large number of persons who will insist that Johann Orth was not wrecked off the South thirty-one, a tall thin-faced young man, neatly dressed in a grey suit, was placed in the dock at London Sessions, says The London Daily Mail, an extraordinary account of a series of frauds was given, among the victims being Mrs. Birrell, wife of the Chief Secretary for Ireland. Clark was charged with obtaining by false pretences sums of £1 10s., 7s. 6d., and 2s. 6d.

Mr. J. P. Grain, prosecuting, said that the accused called at the Eton Mission at Hackney Wick, presented to Mr. H. F. Anderson a card and stated that he was the son of a rich Canadian whiskey distiller. He was shown over the club, and promised subscriptions. Later in the day Mr. Anderson met Clark at Victoria Station. The accused declared that he had been robbed, and Mr. Anderson handed him 4s. and also an old umbrella, as it was raining.

It was also alleged, said counsel that the accused obtained £1 10s. from Mr. Wellesley of Portman square, pretending that he was a friend of MR. WELLESLEY'S SON.

He also called on the Rev. Charles Stuart Donald, Lancaster road, Kensington, who was in charge of the Ragby Mission, introducing himself as the brother of an old Ruby boy, and obtained £1 on the representation that he had been robbed.

Mr. Wellesley, senior, said the prisoner was an interesting conversationalist. He talked about emigration schemes he was concerned in, and the improvement of the breed of horses in Canada.

Detective-Sergeant Morgan stated that there were more than a score of cages against the prisoner. Once while he was in prison a clergyman became interested in him and allowed him £1 a week after his release. In the clergyman's absence the prisoner defrauded his wife of a sovereign by a false story, and obtained the suit of clothes in which he appeared in the dock from the clergyman's tailors. He had given a young woman some stolen checks and had robbed her of a cigarette case. Using one of Mr. Wellesley's cards, he ordered £20 worth of cigars, but failed to intercept the messenger despatched with them. In Mr. Wellesley's name, too he had and he had obtained various sums of money from persons connected with colleges in different parts of the country.

One day he called at the Regent street Polytechnic and announced that he was about to present them with a trophy. He spent some time selecting one at a Regent street silversmith's, and afterwards obtained money from some of those who were to compete for it. He went to Eton, where he posed as a wealthy Canadian. He dined with one of the masters, and Mr. Birrell, son of the Secretary for Ireland, was present. When in London Mr. Birrell, junior, was visited by the accused, who persuaded his mother to give the man £3. Clark also obtained £1 from a master at Eton, and then went to the master's brother and obtained £2 from him.

The accused was found guilty, and five previous convictions were proved. Mr. Wallace, K. C., sentenced him to three years' penal servitude.

MARRIAGES IN GERMANY.

Betrothal and Ceremony—Awe Inspiring Wedding Feast.

There are many good things in Miss Wy'e's volume. She is in her most optimistic mood in the chapter on "Marriage—Before and After," and since the cry goes up from so many countries that there are not enough men to "go round" it is gratifying to hear that in Germany at all events things are otherwise, says the Westminster Gazette. On the authority of a German lady we are told that "an average girl can always get the man she wants as long as she does not want anything too grand or expensive." In her own social circle she has only to make her choice, and her mother does the rest.

With the slightest encouragement on the girl's part matters march rapidly forward. Twenty years ago a young couple were never left an instant to themselves until they were actually married. Now-a-days the painful etiquette has been relaxed and the task of marrying thereby simplified.

As long as she holds a tennis racket the damsel may wander with her willing swain wherever she likes and a ski tour on the snow covered hills is said to be an even more successful match maker than a game of tennis. It sounds quite charming and so very simple.

On the other hand the ballroom "has sunk out of sight as a matrimonial market." In the first place, it is bad form to dance more than twice with the same girl unless one is engaged; in the second place, sitting out corners are unknown, so that the young man naturally feels that his chances are better out of doors, where his preference is not observed by a dozen pairs of sharp, watching eyes.

And when he has ascertained the lady's sentiments, or perhaps we ought to say when she has made it plain to him that he may marry her, he puts on his top hat and frock coat and calls on her father, explaining his prospects, receiving an explanation of hers, and if both give satisfaction the great event of the betrothal comes off.

There are delightful details concerning the prescribed behavior of the engaged couple, the German bridal trousseau, and the civil and religious marriage ceremony. When the latter is concluded the party returns to the bride's home, and then begins a festive meal which puts the German's power of stoic, cheerful endurance to the test. It is a mighty meal an awe inspiring meal, a really awful meal. The clergyman sits between the bride and bridegroom and makes a speech in their honor. Then the father of the bridegroom makes a speech in honor of the bride's family, and the father of the bride makes a speech in honor of the bridegroom's family, and then comes the guests, the ladies, everybody en fin, till there is nothing left to toast except the wine itself. All this takes some hours, usually from three to seven, and the "Stimmung" rises from degree to degree, especially after the pointedly ignored departure of the bride and bridegroom. The evening is concluded with a dance, and if many guests are staying in the house, and the bride's mother has enough strength left, there is what is called a "Nach Hochzei," a second festivity, the day after.

GREAT PALACE OF PEACE

MAGNIFICENT BUILDING BEING ERECTED NEAR HAGUE.

Will Become the Headquarters of International Court of Arbitration.

In the grounds of the beautiful little palace midway between The Hague and Scheveningen, where lived and died Princess Anna Paulowna, the grandmother of the Queen of Holland, 200 men are at work building the Palace of Peace, which on its completion in 1913 will become the headquarters of the International Court of Arbitration. The Palace of Peace will, if Mr. Andrew Carnegie's dream come true, says The London Daily Express, be the future battleground of all nations, and here in its magnificent council chamber the greatest international jurists will arbitrate on the quarrels of the world.

Towards this happy end the American steel king has contributed £3000,000 to assist in the erection and maintenance of the building, "believing," as the deed of trust of October 7, 1903, puts it, "that the establishment of a Permanent Court of Arbitration by the treaty of July 29, 1889, is the forward of a worldwide humanitarian character which has ever been taken by the joint powers, as it must ultimately banish war, and further, being of opinion that the cause of the Peace Conference will greatly benefit by the erection of a courthouse and library for the Permanent court of Arbitration." The site on which the Palace of Peace is being built covers sixteen acres and was acquired by the Dutch Government at a cost of £58,000.

The architect, whose design was selected by the international jury from 216 others submitted, is M. L. M. Cordonnier, of Lille, and with him is associated Mr. J. A. G. van der Steur, of Haarlem, as resident architect. The plans provide for a building of brick and stone, with roof of blue Welsh slates, in character partly Flemish and Dutch, of a type reminiscent of some of the old Belgian town halls. The main part of the palace is the ground floor. The entrance is approached by curving slopes, flanked by a magnificent terrace, extending on either side. On the left a tower rises to a height of 280 feet. The court or council chamber is a hall 70 feet long, 40 feet wide, and 33 feet high. Three windows on one side face three on the other. A dais for the tribunal rises at one end, fronting a great window. This chamber is connected by a corridor, lined with Greek and Italian marble, with the smaller court situated at the base of the tower. The remainder of the floor is taken up by reading rooms, consultation rooms, and a vast map library. The upper floor is set apart for the rooms of the Administrative Council and the permanent officials, and for the library of 200,000 volumes. In the centre of the building is a courtyard 144 feet long by 111 feet wide, with fountain in the centre, through which

SIGHTED SINKING SHIP

CAPTAIN AND FIVE DYING SAILORS RESCUED.

British Vessel From Barbadoes Brought to Light a Tragic Story.

During the past summer the British steamer Ikalis, two days out from Barbadoes, sighted a sinking sloop, flying signals of distress, and in a few minutes had come upon one of those mute histories that make the terror and the romance of the seas.

The sloop was the little Sunlight, a wandering cargo carrier between small ports of the islands of Antigua and Barbadoes. She lay yawning helplessly in the light puffs of wind, her canvas flapping, her wheel idle, her master and his crew of five flat on the decks. There was no water and no food in sight.

In a few minutes the men had been hoisted aboard the steamer and, after an hour's work, revived. Then came thanks and explanations.

VINEGAR AND SUGAR.

Captain J. Frank, owner of the Sunlight, said that he had run into a fog a few hours out of Antigua, had lost his bearings and for thirteen days he and his crew had been living on vinegar and sugar. How long they had been unconscious before the Ikalis bore down on them he did not know.

"A member of the crew was to have been married to his sweetheart when we reached Barbadoes," said Captain Frank, "but I guess that's an interrupted romance."

As the fog came on the sloop began to take water and the crew worked at the pumps until exhausted. Distress signals were set after a storm washed their wood and water supplies overboard, and for nearly two weeks their sole sustenance was sugar saturated with vinegar from a barrel which had stayed lashed fast.

DYING ON DECK.

When the storm cleared it was found that the compass had gone with the provisions, and the crew pumped water and sailed recklessly until, one by one, they were overcome from exhaustion and starvation and each, in his turn stretched himself out on the deck to die. Captain Frank was the last man to give in.

"Without a compass we were sailing wildly, in the mad hope that some vessel would pick us up," he said. "I was at the wheel the last I remember with my men lying about me, dying. I guess I keeled over in my turn, too. The first I knew was when they brought me to on the Ikalis."

When the rescued men had been refreshed and strengthened they insisted on returning to the doomed Sunlight, which had been kept in sight. Accordingly they were put aboard with a store of water and provisions, but while the Ikalis was bidding them adieu they called for help. The storm-strained little Sunlight was sinking. The Ikalis took them off again, the Sunlight was abandoned and the shipwrecked were brought to port.

The evening is concluded with a dance, and if many guests are staying in the house, and the bride's mother has enough strength left, there is what is called a "Nach Hochzei," a second festivity, the day after-ward.

It is indeed a mighty affair; one might even say that from the mere non-German point of view it is rather too much of a good thing.

MARVELS OF THE STOMACH.

People Swallow Knives, Nails, Bits of Glass, Etc.

How much maltreatment that long-suffering thing, the human stomach, will stand. Vast numbers of people live to advanced age who have never passed a day without putting into it something that it would have been happier without. Others, like Sir Richard Grenville, who used to eat wineglasses, deliberately expose the organ to cureless ruin; and it puts up with it all like a lamb. One is always reading that some person, usually described as a laborer, has eaten a pound of tin tacks, or swallowed a couple of penknives, for a wager, and that he is none the worse. But the worst cases occur among the insane, and one of the most singular is described in "The Hospital."

This was a case which Dr. Rohmer recently reported to the Medical Society; the case of a lunatic from whose stomach he had removed by gastrostomy the handles of twenty-three white-metal forks. The patient, who was employed in the kitchen, complained that for a couple of weeks he had been troubled with indigestion and abdominal pain. He admitted that he had, during a period of about six months, swallowed five or six forks unknown to the warders.

Upon this, X-ray photography was resorted to, and showed the presence of four or five shadows in the epigastric region, which resembled those cast by the handles of forks or spoons. The foreign bodies were successfully removed, and weighed together about 14 ounces. Convalescence was uneventful, and a cure resulted, the patient being none the worse for his exploit. It seems even possible that the impression will be left on the mind that forks are rather good for the alimentary canal than otherwise.

STRANGE PEOPLE OF JAPAN.

Aboriginal Ainus One of Strange Sights at Anglo-Jap Fair.

At the Anglo-Japanese Exposition at London Japanese landscape gardeners have turned large tracts into flower gardens dotted with quaint Japanese houses, and there is a magnificent exhibit of the arts, crafts and industries of Japan.

A party of Ainus, the people often called the oldest race in the world, who live in the northern part of Japan, are also attracting much attention. There are but few of them left, though at one time they doubtless held a great part of Japan. Their faces bear but little resemblance to those of the Japanese and it is thought that their race will soon be extinct.

In the centre of the building is a courtyard 144 feet long by 111 feet wide, with fountain in the centre, through which all the air used in the building will be pumped. The whole palace is 290 feet square.

At the suggestion of Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, all countries are contributing towards the internal decoration.

LINLITHGOW CASTLE.

May be Restored as Scotch Memorial to King Edward.

There are two schemes as a memorial in Scotland to King Edward, the improvement of Holyrood Palace and the restoration of Linlithgow Palace. The former seems to find most favor, possibly because of the idea that with Holyrood thoroughly habitable the King and Queen might use the ancient palace for a brief period each year says the Court Journal.

Holyrood is in a fair state of preservation, whereas Linlithgow Palace, on the shore of the beautiful sheet of water of that name, is in ruins, and this being the case perhaps the better plan would be the restoration of Linlithgow. The palace, which is somewhat square and heavy looking, was the birthplace of Mary Queen of Scots; in Linlithgow Church James IV. of Scotland was forewarned by an apparition of the coming disaster at Flodden Field; in its streets the Regent Murray was shot; close by the town Edward I. had two ribs broken by his horse the night before Falkirk, and on its loch a Chancellor of the Exchequer, bent on economy, issued instructions that the royal swans should be kept down to a dozen.

Though a building with little to attract the eye, Linlithgow Palace is a most interesting place and many people would like to see it carefully and judiciously restored. The oldest parts, the east and west sides, were built in the fifteenth century; the newest, the north side, in 1620. The original entrance was by a drawbridge on the east, where is an archway surmounted by the royal arms and three towers, remains of an older building.

On entering by the present doorway on the south side the guard room is on the right, where the Regent Murray died; in the centre of the quadrangle is a fountain erected by James V., of which that in front of Holyrood is a copy. The kitchens have a fireplace as big as a railway arch and the parliament hall is 100 feet long, with a noteworthy chimney-piece restored. It had a minstrel's gallery, and a long passage from it leads to the chapel. The room in which Queen Mary was born is a great contrast in point of size to that which witnessed her son's birth in Edinburgh Castle. At the northwest corner a spiral staircase leads up to Queen Margaret's bower, the most perfect little room in the palace, square within, hexagonal without. There is a fine look-out, and here the Queen is said to have watched for the return of her husband, James IV., from Flodden. There are also those adjuncts of the mediaeval fortress, dungeons and a torture chamber.

through the Indian Mutiny, of which she had many recollections.

OLD AGE TAKES BACK SEAT.

Fifty is Fatter and Paler Than Thirty—No Other Difference.

There is no fact more striking than the way modern life is pushing back the period of old age. Less than a century ago a man was old at 40. You have only to pick up Jane Austen's novels to find gentlemen of 35 described as middle-aged. At 60 they were grabbing in their dotage. And there is Mr. Pickwick—that dear, delightful, benevolent old gentleman of 45.

Fifty years ago when a man reached the age of 45 he grew a beard under his chin, bought himself a pair of drab gaiters and a white neckcloth, and spoke with anxious concern of the rising generation, whose manners were so different from those he had known as a young man. In our generation it is outwardly indistinguishable from 52, save in that the former has a slightly more youthful tint in its cheek and its waistcoat.

As for the fair sex, the genus old lady is all-but extinct. The pretty vivacious matron you admire at a garden party may have seen 25 or 30 summers. As Queen Alexandra not long said to Mme. Adeline Patti: "We two are two of the youngest women in England." The illustrious royal example has been so sedulously followed that the ladies—always young, always active—may be said to laugh in the very face of Father Time.

STREET LIGHTING NOVELTY.

German Village to Make Pedestrians Pay for Their Light.

Why should sober minded citizens who are in their homes and safe in bed by 10 o'clock at night pay lighting taxes for others who, being of a jovial turn of mind, prefer to stay in cafes, clubs or bars until midnight and not return home until the early hours of the morning?

Manifestly it is unfair, but in Germany this question has now been answered in a way which will please the earnest taxpayers, and probably prove a terror to the late night birds, writes a correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette. To the village of Zarkau, near Glogau, in Silesia, must be given the honor of installing a system of automatic electric lighting for the streets. The electric lights burn every night from the outskirts of Glogau through the village of Zarkau, a distance of about a kilometer, until 10 o'clock at a mutual cost to the community in general. Then they are switched out.

At each end of this kilometer stretch, on an iron pillar, stands a small iron cupboard lighted by a tiny electric light. Those persons who are out after 10 o'clock wishing to have their way lighted must insert a ten pfennig piece into a slot in the side of the iron cupboard. Then the nine lamps placed along this stretch burst forth into a twelve minute life, thus enabling the passenger to find his way in lightness to his or her house.

The scheme is working in a satisfactory way, and it seems quite probable that other German villages and towns will follow the example of Zarkau and install the automatic lighting system to be put into operation after 10 o'clock.

in sight. Accordingly they were put aboard with a store of water and provisions, but while the Ikalis was bidding them adieu they called for help. The storm-strained little Sunlight was sinking. The Ikalis took them off again, the Sunlight was abandoned and the shipwrecked were brought to port.

THE ROYAL TRAIN.

Twelve Cars Needed to Take King and Family to Scotland.

The special train in which King George, Queen Mary and their children journeyed from London to Balmoral Castle, Queen Victoria's favorite country place, is reputed to have been the heaviest and longest that ever has left London. It contained twelve cars, weighed 375 tons and was 692 feet long.

The train was made up of two baggage cars, the King's private car, originally built for King Edward; a new private boudoir car for the Queen, Queen Alexandra's boudoir car, two private cars for Princess Mary and her attendants and the royal equerries, a private car for the other royal children, their tutors and servants, and four cars for the other servants and the railroad officials. The train was pulled by two locomotives.

The Queen's new boudoir car is the very latest thing in luxurious English railroad construction. All the rooms are in white enamel, blue being the predominating color, but the effect is lightened with brocade and a soft shade of pink to tone the electric lights. The bedroom is draped with soft pink, while the dressing room is decorated in similar style and contains inlaid satinwood furniture.

At the end of the car is an observation platform. The attendants' quarters are fitted with electric plugs for connecting to heaters for providing tea and coffee. The Queen's car and that of the King are coupled together, enabling any one to pass from one end of the train to the other.

All the cars of the royal train are of the same dimensions. Each car is 61 feet long and 9 feet wide.

When the royal family travels the railroad officials are busy for weeks in advance arranging for the safety of the travellers. Despite the length of the journey from London to Ballater, 538 miles, the royal train was passed along not by signals from the signal towers but by hand signals, an army of section hands being stationed along the road so that throughout its journey the train passed through a lane of green lamps held by railroad employees.

The Dublin mail train was used as a pilot train for the royal special and no other trains were allowed to enter the line between the Irish mail and the royal train. At Crewe and Carlisle, where the royal train stopped for inspection, etc., all traffic was stopped so that the royal sleepers should not be disturbed.

A Hard Moment.

"Well, Jim," said Bingleton, as he proudly showed off his first-born "what do you think of that for a kid?" "He's some kid, all right, all right," returned Jim unemotionally. "Think he looks like me, old man?" persisted Bingleton. "H-m! Well—er—ah—um—well, Bill, I—well, old pal, to tell you the truth, I'm afraid he does!" replied the embarrassed Jim.

Havelock, Sept. 19.—In a remote part of this township of Belmont, Peterboro' County, on Thursday evening last Telesia Deline, aged 24, was found lying dead in the woodshed of the house occupied by her and her husband, Hugh Deline. On the body were marks indicating that a struggle had taken place and that the woman had been murdered. A coroner's inquest was begun on Friday last and adjourned until next Friday. Deline and his wife had moved to Belmont only last year from Madoc township where they had both been brought up and where their parents still reside. Deline has since been arrested and will be charged with the crime.

DENBIGH

Most of our farmers are now busy doing their fall plowing or cutting their corn. Some have already commenced to dig their potatoes while others are engaged getting their threshing done. Melbourn Rose is busy with his steam threshing outfit in the vicinity while J. Vorin of Griffith with his horse-power outfit is threshing for the farmers in the north-eastern part of the township. The returns are reported to be satisfactory with the exception of peas, which are a very poor crop this year.

While the adjoining smaller school sections have succeeded in retaining their teachers, and have their schools in operation, the pupils of our village school are still enjoying their vacation very much to the regret of their parents, as our board of trustees have not been able to engage a teacher, though they are offering a liberal increase to the salary here-to-fore paid.

David Youmans, jr., of Cache Bay, is here on a visit to his parents Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Youmans and is trying to engage men to work in the lumber camps. Most of our young men have however already left for the "Soo" and other parts of New Ontario and working men are getting scarce. Several agents of lumber firms have lately been through here trying to engage men for the winter at very fair wages, but with very moderate success.

A political meeting in the interests of the Conservative party was held at Bath Hall, in this village Wednesday evening, at which several prominent public speakers were present.

THE PONY EXPRESS.

Fearless Riders and the Dangers and Hardships They Faced.

Perhaps the most picturesque figure on the old trail was the pony express rider. The overland stage proved too slow for mail and express in its flight from the Missouri and the Pacific. HE LOST THE RACE

Mark Twain's Futile Chase After a Tallyho Coach.

MISSED A BIG CELEBRATION.

The Way the Famous Humorist in Company With W. D. Howells Did Not Attend the Centennial of the Battle of the Minutemen at Concord.

In his reminiscences of Mark Twain in Harper's Magazine W. D. Howells tells amusingly of the time when he and Mr. Clemens missed the anniversary of the battle of Concord:

"Mark Twain came on to Cambridge in April, 1875, to go with me to the centennial ceremonies at Concord in celebration of the battle of the minutemen with the British troops a hundred years before. We both had special invitations, including passage from Boston, but I said why bother to go to Boston when we could just as well take the train for Concord at the Cambridge station. He equally decided that it would be absurd, so we breakfasted deliberately and then walked to the station, reasoning of many things, as usual.

"When the train stopped we found it packed inside and out. People stood dense on the platforms of the cars. To our startled eyes they seemed to project from the windows, and unless memory betrays me they lay strewn upon the roofs like brakemen slain at the post of duty. We remounted the fame worn steps of Porter's station and began exploring North Cambridge for some means of transportation overland to Concord, for we were that far on the road by which the British went and came on the day of the battle. The livermen whom we appealed to received us, some with compassion, some with derision, but in either mood convinced us that we could not have hired a cat to attempt our conveyance, much less a horse or vehicle of any description.

"I felt keenly the shame of defeat and the guilt of responsibility for our failure, and when a gay party of students came toward us on the top of a tallyho, luxuriantly empty inside, we felt that our chance had come and our last chance. He said that if I would stop them and tell them who I was they would gladly, perhaps proudly, give us passage. I contended that if with his far vaster renown he would approach them our success would be assured.

"While we stood, lost in this 'contest of civilities,' the coach passed us, with gay notes blown from the horns of the students, and then Clemens started in pursuit, encouraged by shouts from the merry party, who could not imagine who was trying to run them down, to a rivalry of speed. The unequal match could end only in one way, and I am glad I cannot recall what he said when he came back to me. Since then I have often wondered at the grief which would have wrung those blithe young hearts if they could have known that they might have had the company of Mark Twain to Concord that day and did not.

"We hung about unavailingly in the bitter wind awhile longer and then slowly, very slowly, made our way home. We wished to pass as much tea is the result of care and experience in blending—must be the combination of fine flavor, smooth strength and richness. Because all these elements are so generously included in Red Rose Tea it well merits the term "good tea."

An Unfortunate Response.
The problem of too many churches in a given locality is often a perplexing one. It is said that the churches in a certain village, on opposite sides of the streets, were so close that when the congregation in one church sang "Will There Be Any Stars In My Crown?" the congregation in the other church promptly responded, "No, Not One; No, Not One." Fortunately it is not the seeming contradiction in contrast to the unintentional inharmonious responses in songs.—Lippincott's.

Court of Revision.

Notice is hereby given that a Court will be held, pursuant to The Ontario Voters' Lists Act, by His Honor the Judge of the County Court of the County of Lennox and Addington, at Odessa on Wednesday, September 28th 1910, at the hour of 10 o'clock in the forenoon to hear and determine complaints of errors and omissions in the Voter's List of the Municipality of Ernestown.

Feared Riders and the Dangers of Hardships They Faced.

Perhaps the most picturesque figure on the old trail was the pony express rider. The overland stage proved too slow for mail and express in its flight from the Missouri and the Pacific. True, it had cut down the months of the old ox team to twenty-five days, and still there was a clamor that the east and west be brought closer together, and it was done. The pony cut the time to ten days.

Those who were personally acquainted with the famous pony express of those days could never forget the intrepid rider who braved all perils, forgetful of self, intent only on the speedy delivery of his precious mochila to the next hardy horseman. Hard and fast he rode over mountain and plain, across scorching desert and icy snow, through sunshine and rain, past friend, away from foe, to the final achievement—the safe delivery of his charge.

Forty fearless horsemen in saddle riding west, as many more riding east—and this novel but useful enterprise was in motion. For two years the pony express carried messages of business and love across 2,000 miles of western mountains and plains, over a country peopled with a hostile race, destitute of cultivation or development, through a region wild, desolate and little known.

It was in 1859 that the pony express was established. The route, briefly stated, was due west from St. Joseph to Fort Kearney, up the Platte to Julesburg, thence, by Fort Laramie and Fort Bridger, to Salt Lake City, thence to Camp Floyd, Ruby valley, the Humboldt, Carson City, Placerville and Folsom, to Sacramento and San Francisco by boat.

The intention of the pony express was to carry letters only and not more than ten pounds at a trip. It was decided that the safest and easiest mode of carrying the mail was to make four pockets, one in each corner of the mochila, a covering made of heavy leather for the saddles and generally used by the expert Mexican and Spanish riders. The mochila was transferred from pony to pony and went through from St. Joseph to San Francisco, the pockets containing the mail being locked and opened only at military posts en route and at Salt Lake City. These precious letters were wrapped in oiled silk to protect them, but even this precaution sometimes failed. Rivers had to be crossed; horse and rider swam together.—W. C. Jenkins in National Magazine.

Grew Too Tall.

"I recall a case of genuine bone-headedness, mixed with enthusiasm, that cost a great many people a bunch of money," said an oil operator. "It was during the time when a big strike meant a drop in the price of oil. The foreman of a drill crew had been instructed by the employers to use a code in the event of oil being found. If it was a big flow he was to wire, 'Pine trees grow tall.' If, on the other hand, the flow was small, 'Pine trees grow small,' was to be the code message. The drill struck a gusher, and the following message was sent by the ivory topped individual: 'Pine trees grow tall as hell, and she is flowing all over the derrick!' Of course there were a number of men about the exchange who could understand telegraphy, and the consequence was that the price of oil dropped about $2 a barrel in a few minutes."

DEATHS.

WAGAR—At Napanee, on Tuesday, Sept. 20th, 1910, Ida Angeline Wagar, relict of the late Edward Grooms, aged 54 years, 8 months.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

what she said when he came back to me. Since then I have often wondered at the grief which would have wrung those blithe young hearts if they could have known that they might have had the company of Mark Twain to Concord that day and did not.

"We hung about unavailingly in the bitter wind awhile longer and then slowly, very slowly, made our way home. We wished to pass as much time as possible in order to give probability to the deceit we intended to practice, for we could not bear to own ourselves baffled in our boasted wisdom of taking the train at Porter's station and had agreed to say that we had been to Concord and got back. Even after coming home to my house we felt that our statement would be wanting in verisimilitude without further delay, and we crept quietly into my library and made up a roaring fire on the hearth and thawed ourselves out in the heat of it before we regained our courage for the undertaking. With all these precautions we failed, for when our statement was imparted to the proposed victim she instantly pronounced it unreliable, and we were left with it on our hands intact. I think the humor of this situation was finally a greater pleasure to Clemens than an actual visit to Concord would have been. Only a few weeks before his death he laughed our defeat over with one of my family in Bermuda and exulted in our prompt detection."

A Woman's Wit.

The husband of Lydia Childs was an invalid for many years. He was not well off in this world's goods, and much of the support of the family was earned by the wife. Thinking of this and of his wife's many sacrifices for his comfort, Mr. Childs once said to her regretfully, "My dear, I wish I were Croesus."

Whereupon Mrs. Childs, with ready wit and gracious tact, responded, "You are Croesus, for you are king of Lydia."—Los Angeles Times.

Imaginary Pains.

Don't laugh at hysterical people with their imaginary pains, says a physician. A "delusion" is reality to the sufferer. When one believes one has a pain one has the pain. All pain is in the brain, and to believe one has it is to have it. It matters not a whit whether the message is sent by one's toe that some kind friend is treading on or whether it is sent from one part of the brain to another.—New York Tribune.
